

Your editorial of Thursday, September 27, 1934, in the Sikeston Herald under the caption "Suspicious" has come to my attention and to clear up your suspicion, I will make a reply.

First, my visit was only a passing visit and I neither met with the City Council nor the Board of Public Works. In fact, I did not see but one councilman and that was Mr. Joseph L. Matthews, and the subject of the light plant was not discussed.

Second, I feel complimented that you said "There are certain people in Sikeston who still desire Mr. Pepper's return as Superintendent of the plant", etc. I do not know who those people are who want me to return, but I do believe I have quite a few friends in Sikeston, but can't believe you can be one of my friends. I do not know why, unless it is because I asked you to pay your electric light and power bill when several months past due.

I was more of a friend to you than you were to me. Instead of discontinuing your electric service for non-payment of your bills, I finally let you have printing and advertising to help you out, while at the same time, your competitor, The Sikeston Standard, was paying promptly and discounting bills. I number among my mistakes while at Sikeston, helping you as I did and penalizing The Sikeston Standard, a staunch supporter of the municipal plant.

Mr. Denman, before the City built its light plant you were against the idea and fought it through your paper, and when I as superintendent, solicited your business for the City's plant, you reluctantly let the City have your business. Your dislike for me comes naturally, because I was its superintendent.

You will have to admit that I tried in every way to befriend you. For instance, I personally repaired apparatus in your printing plant and did not charge you one penny, making it a personal favor to you. I believed you to be a good christian gentleman and tried to make you a friend of mine and am sorry that I failed to do so.

Mr. Denman, don't get "Suspicious" when I come to town—just ask me as man to man and I will "come clean" and you will get the true story and will not have to write next time under "Suspicious".

I can't preach like you can, but I believe you will be better off if you will not be so "Suspicious" and get behind your Mayor and City Council and help your Board of Public Works to run your Light Plant in a manner that will be beyond "Suspicion".

Very truly yours,
DAN G. PEPPER,

$5 IN SMALL CHANGE
TAKEN FROM SELLARD'S

Between $5 and $6 in small change was stolen from the cash register drawer of the Sellard's Meat Market sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. Nothing else was disturbed. Breaking a window pane in the rear part of the store, which is located on East Malone avenue, the thief apparently put his hand in the hole he had made and unlocked the window.

Then he climbed in, and after taking the money, which was all in 5-cent, 10-cent, quarter and half dollar pieces, he left in the same manner by which he had entered.

No clues which might lead to the identification of the robber have yet been discovered.

Last month a fire, caused by defective wiring, burned a large hole in the roof of the market, effecting an estimated damage of $150.

After discussing, arguing, acting and obliterating the action, and replacing one ordinance with another, councilmen Monday evening amended their ordinance concerning a purchasing committee, which has caused widespread controversy, and left members of the Board of Public Works unhindered in their activity.

The new ordinance, which was introduced by Barney Forrester and unanimously passed by aldermen, states that ordinance 1231, which regulates the purchase of merchandise for the city, "shall not be applicable to purchases made by the Board of Public Works". It became effective at once since it was signed Monday night by Dr. G. W. Presnell.

The body of the original ordinance, number 1231, which was unanimously approved by the six councilmen who met for a special session on September 21, is printed below.

"The Mayor of the City of Sikeston, Mo., is hereby vested with authority to appoint a Purchasing Committee, and shall appoint said committee within a reasonable time after the passage of this ordinance.

"The said Purchasing Committee shall be composed of three members, appointed from the regularly elected councilmen of the City of Sikeston, one of whom shall be designated as chairman by the mayor.

"The members of the said Purchasing Committee shall serve at the will of the Mayor.

"Hereafter all purchases of any kind made by, in behalf of, or for the use of, the City of Sikeston, its officers, or any department thereof, shall be made in the following manner:

"(a) All purchases amounting in total cost to less than $3.00 shall be purchased by the officer or department desiring them.

"(b) All purchases amounting in total cost to the city of $3.00 to $25.00, shall be purchased by the officer or department desiring the item; before such purchase can be made, however, it must be approved in writing by the chairman of the Purchasing Committee or by both the other members.

In the event of absence from the city of the Chairman and one or both members, the approval must be secured from the mayor.

"(c) All purchases amounting in total cost to the City of more than $25.00 and less than $300.00 must be approved in writing by a majority of the purchasing committee, before such purchase may be made.

"(d) All purchases amounting in total cost to $300 or more, except fuel oil, must be approved by ordinance, regularly passed by the City Council, before such purchase may be made.

"Any officer or employee of the City of Sikeston who shall violate any of the sections, or parts of sections, of this ordinance, shall automatically forfeit his office or position, and the mayor shall declare the same vacant upon presentation of satisfactory proof of the violation."

At Monday night's session, Joe Matthews, who was not present when ordinance 1231 was approved, introduced an ordinance to repeal the one creating the purchasing committee, indicating that the councilmen had acted quickly and unwisely and should immediately reconsider their decision in order to allow the Board of Public Works to function in the manner it thought best.

Ordinance number 1231 was a very bad one, Lyman Bowman, a member of the Board of Public Works said, adding that the Board could not give its customers superior service, especially in times of emergency, if the ordinance were left in force.

E. P. Coleman, Jr., also a member of the Board, endorsed Mr. Bowman's statements, saying that the Board was intended to remain entirely non-partisan and to be allowed to manage its affairs alone. It was indicated that the ordinance reflected on the integrity and business judgment of the Board members.

J. F. Cox, chairman of the Board, who also attended the meeting, did not speak.

Dr. G. W. Presnell, who said he introduced the ordinance after numerous requests for it, stated the repeal of an action so soon after its approval would place the council in a "bad light" and requested only that the ordinance be given a thirty-day trial. This suggestion was opposed by councilmen, notably Mr. Matthews, E. H. Smith and Lynn Waggoner, the latter two saying that the ordinance had been passed hastily and that they had regretted their approval of it soon after the meeting.

When aldermen asked for and obtained a vote on the new ordinance, only Hubert Boyer, Barney Forrester, and T. F. Rafferty opposed repeal of the ordinance, while Mr. Matthews, G. C. Baker, Mr. Smith, Mr. Waggoner and Otis Hahn, approved it. Mr. Forrester was appointed chairman of the purchasing committee, and Mr. Boyer and Mr. Rafferty were named members by Dr. Presnell soon after passage of the original ordinance.

After Dr. Presnell indicated that he would veto Mr. Matthews' ordinance and by that action prevent it from becoming effective for at least thirty days, councilmen further discussed the matter. Mr. Matthews saying that although he did not intend to slap his fellow aldermen, he considered it unlikely that two members of the purchasing committee who had been on the council for less than six months and the third who had served one term and part of another were any more capable of handling the Board of Public Works' affairs than Board members themselves. He added that before the passage of ordinance 1231 there had been in force a ruling concerning city purchases of more than $5.

Mr. Forrester, introducing his ordinance, which was later passed, withdrew his opposing vote after a brief tilt with Mr. Bowman, during which Mr. Bowman said he now had less "respect" for Mr. Forrester.

Although the councilmen then considered for a time passing Mr. Forrester's ordinance, which only amended an ordinance they had several minutes before obliterated by their vote, they at last consulted Dr. Presnell, and learning that he would not veto Mr. Forrester's ordinance if it were approved, they decided, on Mr. Waggoner's motion and Mr. Baker's second, to erase from the council's minutes the previous veto and its attendant discussions. They then unanimously passed Mr. Forrester's ordinance.

A second ordinance, passed at Monday's meeting, to save the city revenue, according to Robert Dempster, city attorney, provided that "all cases arising within the City of Sikeston, for any violation of a municipal or city ordinance, shall be tried before the police judge of the City, and in no case shall any defendant be permitted to have a jury trial for any violation thereof". The ordinance, which was approved almost unanimously, Grover Baker casting the only dissenting vote, was termed unconstitutional by Judge Jos. W. Myers, who attended the meeting.

Mr. Dempster, however, said he believed it was constitutional.

The one-hour parking limit which has been in effect on the downtown portion of Front and North New Madrid Streets for some time, was lifted by the councilmen after they heard objections to it reported to Mr. Hahn, Geo. Lough and Clay A. Mitchell, who interviewed most of the merchants whose business houses are located in the part of town, where it is enforced.

Although about half of the merchants did not disapprove of one-hour parking, they said, the rest were vigorously opposed to it since they believed it removed business from Sikeston, especially

Brown Shoe Factory To Open In Caruthersville

In this issue appears a display advertisement featuring the big opening day of the new Brown Shoe Factory at Caruthersville on Thursday, October 11.

Residents of Caruthersville are planning to stage a huge celebration on that day. The American Legion fair will be in progress during that week, and committees representing the shoe company, the business interests, and the American Legion Fair Association have combined in their efforts to make next Thursday a day long to be remembered in this part of the State.

The coming to Caruthersville of the Brown Shoe Company, it is thought, will mean the turning point toward ever-lasting prosperity in this section and especially to Caruthersville and vicinity. The Brown Shoe Company is rated as one of the really big shoe concerns in the world. They have accepted from the people at Caruthersville the Menzies' Plant with an increase in the capacity of approximately fifty per cent and have spent nearly $100,000 in the improvement of the property and the installation of necessary equipment. The plant will open with a boom and will be the cause of the employment of approximately six hundred people, to which number additions will be made from time to time.

On the day of the gigantic celebration, a big parade will open the ceremonies for the day. The committees in charge anticipate a parade of one mile in length. It will be led by Col. George W. Phipps, of the 140th Infantry, as Grand Marshal, with military units of that organization and the celebrated 140th Infantry Band, with Lieutenant Oscar T. Honey as director.

The Hayti Municipal Band will lead the industrial section of the parade and the local American Legion Band will head the school and civic divisions. Organizations such as Rotary Clubs, Lions Clubs and Lifters Clubs will be invited to participate in the parade. The committee on floats reports active interest being taken in them.

After the dedication ceremonies are over, the program will again go under way at the fair grounds, where the American Legion boys have prepared a very interesting and remarkable program for the afternoon. They are featuring the Brown Shoe Company Derby where the winner will be presented a loving cup and a beautiful wreath of roses from the vice-president of the Shoe Company, who will be a guest of honor for the big day.

Republicans Reported To Be Making Untrue Statements On Cotton

Because it has been reported that some Republican candidates for county offices have been telling cotton farmers they cannot sell their cotton unless they get tax exemption certificates, and because it is also reported that farmers are believing these statements, which are not true, some explanation of the cotton situation is obviously necessary.

Farmers can sell their cotton, and they can receive in cash about 8 cents a pound for it. The tax of $5.67 a hundred is held by ginners until tax exemption certificates are obtained. Then growers may take the certificates to the ginners and draw the $5.67 which was previously held up to cover the tax in case the tax exemption certificates were not secured by the farmers.

According to one authority, the indications are that the regular grower who cooperated in the reduction campaign will be able to sell his cotton without paying any tax, and that all other growers will likely be able to sell their tax free. Even on cotton on which a tax must be paid the grower still receives about 8 cents a pound, a sum considerably more than he obtained for cotton during the last two years of the Hoover administration and more than he would probably be getting if the government's cotton reduction program had not been inaugurated.

It is obvious that a program which reduced the production from around fifteen million bales to about ten million will undoubtedly enhance the price of the product. Further, in addition to the increased price, those growers participating in the campaign are being paid by the government for the acres which they have left out of production.

The Republican candidates, says one county leader, state that all the Roosevelt relief programs should be abolished, but "not one of them suggests anything that they expect to do for the farmer to take the place of this program, so evidently they intend to leave the farmer as they always have before, to take care of himself and root, hog, or die, although they have always taken good care of the big corporations, manufacturers, and the industrial east.

"They say that Mr. Roosevelt's program to help the farmer and the poor man is unconstitutional and socialistic, but not one of them saw anything of that nature when the Hoover administration furnished ninety million dollars to Charley Dawes' bank or when they furnished large sums of money to the railways, manufacturers, and other big corporations."

Three To Attend FCA Banquet In St. Louis

John G. Powell, C. H. Denman, and C. L. Blanton, Sr., and possibly several Sikeston landowners, including G. B. Greer, will go to St. Louis Monday to attend a dinner which will be given in honor of William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration at Washington, D. C., at 6:30 o'clock at the Jefferson Hotel.

Invitations to the dinner have been sent to residents of Missouri, Illinois, and Arkansas who are interested in agriculture, and a large attendance is expected.

After spending Monday conferring with F. W. Niemeyer, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration in St. Louis, and after attending the banquet in the evening, Governor Myers, in company with the commissioners of the four units of the Farm Credit Administration, who will journey to St. Louis with him, will devote Tuesday and Wednesday to a survey of agricultural problems in sections of the three states embraced by the sixth district. Most of the two days will be consumed with an inspection of cotton and rice fields in Southeast Missouri and Arkansas.

The farm credit officials who will accompany Governor Myers are A. S. Goss, land bank commissioner; G. M. Brennan, intermediate credit commissioner; S. M. Garwood, production credit commissioner; and F. W. Peck, co-operative bank commissioner.

The Farm Credit Administration of St. Louis, as does each regional office, consists of four units, the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, the Production Credit Corporation and the Bank for Co-operatives.

The Federal Land Bank of St. Louis on its own account and as agent of the Land Bank Commissioner makes long-term amortized loans to farmers on farm real estate security. These loans are closed in the government guaranteed bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

The Production Credit Corporation of St. Louis having organized ninety local production credit associations in this district supervises their operation. The local associations make short-term loans to farmers for agricultural production purposes.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis discounts the farmers' notes for the production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, and other primary lending agencies. The funds for this purpose are obtained largely from the sale of Intermediate Credit Bank debentures to the investing public.

The St. Louis Bank for Co-operatives makes loans to farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations. Loans are made to provide working capital for cooperatives and to provide funds for the purchase, lease, or construction of buildings and other physical facilities.

Since the beginning of the emergency farm mortgage refinancing campaign on May 1, 1933, the four St. Louis divisions of the Farm Credit Administration have made loans totaling more than $120,000,000 to Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois farmers, Mr. Niemeyer said.

Old Football Rivals To Meet Here Tonight

Another chapter of the football rivalry which began in 1910 and will probably continue until Sikeston and Charleston are obliterated, will be written here this (Friday) evening when the two high school eleven begin to play at 7:30 o'clock.

This game is perhaps not as notable as the Thanksgiving ones, which attract crowds of about 1400, but the rivalry between the schools will not be less apparent Friday night and the result will be an indication, to some persons, of the comparative strength of the two teams.

For that reason football fans of both Charleston and Sikeston will gather on the high school field here tonight to cheer and groan.

Both teams opened their seasons by defeating the Matthews eleven, Charleston by a score of 12 to 0 at Matthews, Sikeston by 12 to 0 here. Last Friday the Charleston team won again, this time from Chaffee by a score of 18 to 0, while the Bulldogs, facing a harder foe, lost 7 to 13 to the Jonesboro Golden Hurricanes.

In October, 1933, Charleston defeated Sikeston 6 to 0 in the first of the two games played between the two teams each season, but at the Thanksgiving game the tables were turned, the Bulldogs taking the game 6 to 0, and winning the Thanksgiving bout for the second consecutive time, although from 1928, when the two teams clashed to a scoreless tie at Thanksgiving, until 1932 Sikeston had not been victorious.

The two eleven have met every Thanksgiving day since 1910 except in 1918, during the world war. The results of tabulations on these games show that Sikeston has an edge, since its teams have gained a total of 245 points in 12 wins, while Charleston made only 158 points and won nine times.

Admission to tonight's game, which will undoubtedly bring out a crowd even larger than last Friday's, will be 25 cents.

Fire Prevention Week To Be Observed Here

One of the 150 fire men of the Missouri State Fire Prevention Association, who will devote next week to work in the interest of fire prevention, has been requested to come here Wednesday to speak at a Lions club luncheon, to which John A. Young, fire chief, and members of the fire department will be invited. The speaker will also address high school students at the high school, probably in the afternoon.

The occasion for the speech will be the observance of fire prevention week, which will extend from October 7 to 13, by a proclamation issued for the United States by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the state by Governor Guy B. Park, and for the city by Dr. G. W. Presnell.

During next week, particularly, an effort will be made for a citywide cleanup campaign, including the inspection of roofs, flues, and all heating devices. To insure the success of this campaign the aid of ministers, school officials, fire fighters, women's clubs, and civic organizations will be solicited.

Dr. Presnell's proclamation states that since next week has been designated as "a time for all persons to direct their attention to the savage destruction of human life and the appalling waste of wealth and property by fire, and whereas this destruction of life and property by fire occurs daily and is a serious drain on our national life, and the larger of this fire waste could be avoided through carefulness and by fire protection and fire prevention. I recommend an occasion so that a better understanding of each individual's responsibility for fires may be secured. All civic organizations, business associations, school authorities, women's clubs, and all others interested in public and private welfare, should assist in furthering this important observance."

"I Saw the Tail Wagging the Dog"

I didn't get to go to the World's Fair this summer, nor did I get to go to the last circus that was in town, and I've never been within ten miles of the Buried City at Wickliffe. In fact, "I ain't been nowhere nor seen nothing". That is, not until last Monday night, when the situation was remedied. I've been hearing so much about the Board of Public Works and the City Council, that I decided to get some first-hand information concerning the workings of these two august bodies, and so I took the privilege, and had the honor, of attending their last meeting, on October 1st, and to say that I was delightfully entertained and edified would be expressing it very mildly.

Not a great amount of energy was expended by our City Fathers on the usual preliminaries of motions, reports and allowances of account. Then the presentation of new ordinances was announced, and some two or three of minor importance were duly and regularly read and re-read three times which placed them upon the calendar for approval or disapproval. Everything was serene and harmonious, but I could sense that it was the calm before the storm. The atmosphere grew heavy and then heavier. But I was not long in my wonderment of what the tense situation portended: An ordinance was introduced to repeal Ordinance 1231.

Ordinance 1231 was the ordinance recently adopted creating a Purchasing Committee for the City. The duty of this committee was to supervise the buying of any article for the City, which amounted to more than $3.00. This is purely a business policy which is used by all large business enterprises, including the Highway Department, the Shoe Factory, the Scott County Milling Company, and the oil companies. If it is a good thing for business, why wouldn't it be a good thing for the City of Sikeston? And why should any employee, or appointee, of the City raise such a howl because his buying (with City money of course) should be supervised by the City? I failed to understand the opposition and no cogent reason was given for the repeal of this ordinance, but after much discussion the Mayor announced that a vote would be taken to repeal it. The poll was as follows: Those voting to repeal the ordinance—Baker, Smith, Waggoner, Matthews, and Haha; those voting to keep it—Boyer, Forrester, and Rafferty. Now five votes are enough to pass, an ordinance, unless it is vetoed by the Mayor, in which case it would require six votes. With all eyes in the room trained on the Mayor, he announced that he would veto the repeal ordinance!

It was then I began holding on to my hat! The atmosphere was surcharged with poisonous gas emanating from different angles, and opinions. The discussion was long and interesting; there was coercion, intimidation and cajolery galore, and many left-handed compliments were passed. Finally one of the councilmen voting against repeal requested the Council to permit him to change his vote; this was agreed to and the Mayor's veto could avail nothing. An amendment was then offered which left the purchasing in force, to apply to all except the Board of Public Works, who were given full and unlimited freedom to buy when they please, from whom they please, and as much as they please, with the City paying the bills for said purchases without question.

Of course, Mr. Daniels, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Boardman and Mr. Young are all appointed to office just as the Board of Public Works is, and what would the Board of Aldermen say and do if they came in, did not request a change of ordinance which did not suit them, but demanded its repeal? If the Board of Public Works can compel any ordinance they do not like, do you not agree that it is a case of the tail wagging the dog?

Oh well, it was a pretty good show; I was both amused and amazed! And as it was getting late, anyway, I left and went home and had a nightmare!

MISSOURI FARMERS' OUTLOOK OPTIMISTIC

Although farmers in numerous sections of the State suffered greatly this summer, reports from newspaper editors who are members of the Missouri Press Association to the executive secretary, Charles W. Keller, indicate that farmers are now more optimistic than ordinarily and that business and industry are generally improving.

Southeast Missouri, termed the State's garden spot by residents and visitors alike, is perhaps best prepared for the winter. In Pemisot county, according to the reports, the corn and cotton crops were two-thirds of normal or better and the yields of other crops were fair. Demands for relief dropped 75 per cent because of the advent of the cotton picking season, and a shoe factory in Caruthersville is expected to relieve unemployment still further. In Dunklin county 181 more carloads of watermelons were shipped this year than last and the price was higher than in 1933. Benefit corn-hog and cotton payments and a large addition to a shirt factory will help county residents defeat the depression.

Even in the northeast and northwest part of the State, where the drought was unusually severe, editors reported that fall pastures were splendid, benefit payments had provided needed money, and coal mines, reopened at the end of a school marm's heart—the fierce longings of the soul of a chicken fancier? Then come and laugh your heads off at the ghosts, "gold" and feathers that brought these two together in a "tender" desert romance!—Malone Theatre, Saturday.

CORN-HOG SIGNERS VOTE 2 TO 1 FOR CONTINUANCE OF PROGRAM IN 1935

Benton, October 3.—At a referendum meeting here this week Scott County Corn-Hog signers voted 2 to 1 to continue the Corn-Hog program for 1935. In the same proportion they voted to have a single farm unit contract covering grains and livestock for the year 1935.

It was the opinion of many attending the meeting that the opposition showed its full strength to this plan, while many of those in favor of the plan failed to vote. Of the 780 contract signers in

Scott County eligible to vote only 305 voted. Tywappity Township was the banner township for voting in favor of the plan, the vote being 10 to 1 there in favor. All townships voted in favor of it with the exception of Kelso Township, and the reason they gave for opposing it was that there was no severe penalty placed on the non-signers similar to the Bankhead Bill on cotton. It really was not fair to the plan that this arrangement entered into it as the Agricultural Adjustment Administration keeps all of these programs on a voluntary plan, and the Bankhead Act, which is a compulsory plan, is not a part of the AAA program.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHAPTER SIX

A Trip to the Sun

Setting her struggling figure down on the steps, Mike confronted her with a broad grin. Like Diane, he was dressed in riding clothes. "Here's the guide—but the horses await out on the Bradley ranch and the Bradley awaits without—"

"Delight at seeing him again and indignation at his summary treatment struggled together on Diane's face. Finally, the first won. 'But you scared me,' she gasped. 'Living up to my boogie man role,' he laughed. 'Thought I'd take you off your feet. And I did.' 'But—how did you happen to be here?'"

"Mike glanced at her casually. 'I thought I'd drop around and say hello to the Wilsons. Nice little cottage they have here. Lots of servants and guests. Are they home?'"

"Diane knew she was caught but decided to make the best of it. 'No,' she said gravely, eyes twinkling. 'but they left word for me to mind the children. I was taking the twins to see the executions on the Plaza.'"

"Mike measured an imaginary child. 'Little Otis is tall for his age, isn't he? Or do you have him stretched?'"

"Mike—are you a bloodhound or is this just accidental?'"

"I'm a bloodhound who can read trunk checks when a lady carelessly leaves her trunk outside her stateroom.'"

"Diane looked at his attire. 'But you know all my doings and—' 'Mr. Partos, the manager, is a friend of mine. He owes me money,' he added with droll cunning."

"So he told you I was going shopping at ten o'clock?'"

"Exactly. And I knew you didn't know about our stores here. They don't like saddle horses trotting up and down the aisles and jumping over the notions counter, so I thought you'd like to do your shopping out on the Bradley ranch where horses are horses and not candidates for the bullring."

"I'd love to, Mike," Diane said simply. "But's better than I hoped." He helped her into the car. "Now if I learn to play that trombone in six easy lessons I ought to be really popular."

The car started and gained speed. Once out of the city proper, Diane enjoyed the passing scene in quiet contentment. She silently approved the vista of great level plains covered with grasses of all sorts. They gave her a smoothed out feeling of peace.

Mike's ranch was the typical hacienda type clearing of buildings, corals and barns. In the back the pampas grasses stretched into the distance.

Johnny greeted them as if Diane's presence were the most natural thing in the world. The horses were saddled and for four hours she and Mike galloped and trotted through the countryside, at perfect understanding with each other and the world. Very little was said. But their long silences were eloquent with meaning.

Back again, tired and hungry, they entered the hacienda. It was large and a little crude. On the walls were some pictures of horses and the head of a tapir. It was typical of a room lacking women, yet clean and vigorous. A luncheon table was set for three in the middle. Diane pulled off her hat and sank into a chair.

"Now I'll get a good look at this place." Mike watched her covertly. "Not much to interest a woman—"

"Don't know about that. Uh—how many women have seen it?'" "Darn few. How about some lunch?"

"I could eat a horse." "Probably what you'll get if Johnny's had anything to do with the ordering." "Pablo," he called. "Bring lunch in."

Pablo, a fat, jolly Portuguese with handle-bar mustachios, entered with a huge heaped tray. "Senor," he hissed, "she is beautiful."

"Shut up." Pablo was hurt. He carefully placed a platter of cold chicken on the table. "I wrenged the neck of two chicken—an make 'em cold—for her. She is beautiful," he flung at Mike and ducked out the door.

Johnny came in and they attacked the food ravenously. The two chickens were picked clean and all three sat back in their chairs. Mike turned to Diane. "Apologies for anything that wasn't quite right. As I said—we're not used to fair visitors."

"It's a situation I've been trying to correct," Johnny assured her. He was suddenly very Southern. "But old Cunnel Bradley, he's a man's man—with his horses and dogs and his pipe—"

"And hopes Majah Smith who's 'nough continue to enter his loud and shrill lady friends in town," Mike interrupted.

Diane laughed. "Of plantation needs womenfolk—"

"Not like the last one he turned up with."

"But she had such pretty gold teeth," Johnny pointed out. "Uppahs—and lowahs," Mike retorted.

Diane held up her glass of milk. "And now here's luck to Mike Bradley and Johnny Smith—and that's in the wine of the country," she finished with unaffected sincerity.

Before he drank, Mike's eyes fastened on her in puzzled inquiry. But why so impersonal? they seemed to ask.

A few hours later Johnny and Diane were watching Mike in the roundup at the corral.

Mike rode toward them, turning this way and that, seeming, centaury like, to be part of the horse. "It's a sight to carry away with you, eh?" Johnny said meaningfully as he started to walk off.

Diane's reply came slowly after him. "Yes, Johnny. It is."

Mike rode up and dismounted from the white horse he was riding. Then he grabbed a little foal that was trying to squeeze through the gate. "This one's Chili Beans. Her grandma once won the Del Fuego Sweepstakes for me and saved the mortgage. He's got a lot of horses watching his face. His hold on the colt relaxed. 'You see—pretty harmless out here, aren't we? Like a day nursery. And you had to be and run away. He studied her. 'Why?'"

"Mike—' At this moment, the foal loosened broke away with a leap and a swish of its tail.

"I'll head him off," Diane cried and went after him.

She and Mike spread, each to one side, following the colt into the pampas. Laughing and running, they followed the colt's darting movements. But of a sudden he made a dash past Diane in the direction of the corral. Her plunge after him brought her to the ground. Mike, right behind, stumbled down beside her. Then their laughter died in their throats as they eyes met.

As Mike gathered her slowly to him, her arms went around his neck, and with an inarticulate little murmur of endearment, her lips answered his kiss. Moments later, she moved back. Flushed with an exquisite ecstasy, she looked at him, stary-eyed.

"That's why I lied and ran away," she said softly. Mike tipped her chin. "That's nothing to run away from, is it?"

Diane shook her head. "Just then you and I rushed high above the earth." She looked at the sky. "I don't know where—but we were all alone together—where nobody else will ever be."

Mike kissed each finger separately. "We're going to settle down up there."

"Right in the sun—where we can feel it beat down into us."

"However you spell it," Mike murmured into her hair, "it's love—whether there's a sun or a moon or it's raining."

Then, like all lovers, they asked the immortal questions. "On the boat—did you really know so soon?" Diane asked.

"I've known about somebody like you ever since I could think. When did you know?"

Her finger traced his lips. "I never thought about anybody like you. So I guess it must have been the minute I saw you."

Mike pressed his lips half against hers. "You're going to see me from now on Mrs. Michael Bradley. His words brought her to herself with a jar. Reality again faced her. She averted her gaze. "Now I know that's what I've wanted to hear you say—but I've never dared let myself think about it."

Mike touched her gently. "What have you dared think about?" Diane writhed inwardly with pain. "Everything your arms around me—everything except being Mrs. Mike Bradley."

"Why?" Mike was frankly perturbed. Diane's voice was laden with woe. She lowered her head. "Because perhaps I'm that kind of a girl. You see—her words came in a frightened rush. "There's another man—and he has a wife. But he pays my bills, too. Now—" her voice became a little shrill. "—what do you think of your future Mrs. Mike Bradley?"

Mike sucked in his breath. It made a harsh loud noise in the outdoor stillness. Not a muscle of his face moved. Diane drew back, frightened now at what she had done.

Fashion Marches On Fall Fashion Crop Ready With Slenderizing Styles

by Mmc. LANE BRYANT
Noted Fashion Counselor

NEW YORK—The first fruits of the fall fashion crop show no signs of a drought this season. Instead, they offer choice pickings in the way of smart new dresses for the Larger Woman who seeks clothes that make her look tall and slender.

To get the effect of slenderness, designers are featuring styles finished at the neckline with jabots, wide revers, and bows. Such treatment gives the illusion of "more dress and less woman." For it is true that whatever width is added at the top makes the hips look narrower.

The new dresses come both with and without separate jackets. The jackets are of various lengths, ranging from the hip length style to the full length separate coat. For the woman of an economical turn of mind, a dress-with-jacket offers the most delightful advantage that it serves as a fall suit, and again as a spring suit when one's heavy winter coat is hung away.

Silks, woolsens, and lustrous velvets now come into their own and may be chosen with the assurance that they are correct. Satin, too, comes into the fashion picture. One fashion warning, however, must be issued for the benefit of the Larger Woman—be wary of satins! Glossy satins, unless cleverly manipulated, are treacherous. Their lustrous surface catches every gleam of light and highlights every spare ounce! But in the picture above is shown a satin creation that cleverly avoids the usual pitfalls. Glossy satin is used for the blouse, but the effect of the lustre is minimized by a softly draped neckline. Below the waist, the dull side of the satin is used. And slenderizing features, a curved seam at the hip, setting into a flare, do first rate work in making the Larger Woman look slimmer.

The second dress, in silk crepe, is also ideally suited for Larger Woman wear. It displays transparent velvet appliques, and wide revers. And its pointed fitted wrist, plus curved seams and pleats in front, bring out the slenderizing idea.

If you would like to know more about these dresses, or if you have fashion difficulties which this article does not answer, I will be happy to help you in any way I can. Write me: Mmc. Lane Bryant, Fashion Bureau, 6 East 45th Street, New York City.

THE ARTIST

Adah McRaven

I built a statue so divinely fair,
It seemed to breathe, take life and glow
No mortal could have held me in a spell,
But this creation that I worshiped so.

I bowed before this clay of mortal hands,
Asked nothing of this life but there to be,
Craving one glimpse of this my all,
Transporting me to heavenly ecstasy.

A storm arose, a mighty hurricane,
It crashed about my head and then
I woke with coming of the day,
And at my feet my shattered idol lay.

Vain fool, thy God hath set thee free,
To make the image of a sickly brain
Mold with thy hands if that is thy desire,
But leave the soul to me.

MISSOURI HISTORY

Floyd C. Shoemaker
"That is a constructive insult for which I demand the satisfaction due a gentleman" probably was the reply Dr. Walter Fenwick, a physician of Ste. Genevieve, gave to Thomas T. Crittenden, attorney-general of the Territory of Louisiana, to whom he was carrying a challenge to a duel from his brother, Ezekiel Fenwick. Crittenden accepted the challenge and set the date of the duel on October 1, 1811, 123 years ago this week.

Both physician and lawyer were prominent citizens, each having won recognition in his respective profession in Ste. Genevieve. Crittenden, who was a member of the noted Crittenden family of Kentucky, was appointed attorney-general of the Territory of Louisiana by Governor Benjamin Howard on October 31, 1810. His brother, J. J. Crittenden, represented Kentucky four terms in the United States Senate and was attorney-general of the nation; and later, in 1880, his nephew, Thomas Theodore Crittenden, was elected governor of Missouri.

Fenwick also came from a well known Kentucky family and was considered an eminent physician in spite of his scant 36 years. He held a claim on 10,000 acres of land near "new" Ste. Genevieve. The events leading up to the meeting of October 1, 1811, grew out of a lawsuit in which Crittenden as a lawyer derided Ezekiel Fenwick, who was the defendant. Ezekiel, although he was rated as a physician as well as the owner of "a house of amusement", appears not to have commanded the respect of the community as did his brother, Walter. Crittenden refused to fight a duel with Ezekiel on the ground that Ezekiel was not a gentleman. The reply forced Dr. Walter Fenwick to make the quarrel his own. His reason for so doing was that Crittenden had said his brother was not a gentleman, and not that Crittenden had derided his brother in court. Such were the rules of the "code duello" of Missouri in the territorial era.

The importance of the principals of the duel may be gauged by the men who served as seconds. John Scott, who was later elected the last delegate to Congress from Missouri Territory and the first representative to Congress from the State of Missouri, was second for Crittenden. Fenwick's second was Henry Dodge, sheriff of the District of Ste. Genevieve, Indian fighter, and later a general in the War of 1812 and a member of the U. S. Senate from Wisconsin.

On October 1, 1811, the day set for the duel, the principals, accompanied by their seconds, crossed over to Moreau's Island, which was just below Ste. Genevieve. At the first volley Fenwick fell, mortally wounded. Crittenden was uninjured. Fenwick died the next day. He was survived by his widow, Julie, a daughter of Don Francisco Valle, Jr. Crittenden returned to Kentucky where he was elected to the legislature and later became secretary of state. He died in Louisville in 1832.

The pistols used in the Fenwick-Crittenden duel were of "very large bore" and had barrels 12 inches long. They were made by one of the two slave gunsmiths owned by John Smith T. The reputation of both the slaves and Smith for making weapons of high accuracy was widespread throughout the territory, and their finished products demanded high prices.

The St. Louis Louisiana Gazette made no mention of the Fenwick-Crittenden duel, although it was fatal to a doctor well known in the territory. The duel, while not unique, was at least unusual in that it was one of the few duels based on a "constructive insult". The omission of any mention of the event from the columns of the territory's only newspaper was due, not to the negligence of its editor, but rather to the fact that at that time a newspaper was regarded as a disseminator of ideas rather than a "tattler of personal affairs".

The Gazette made no mention of any duel between the years of 1810 and 1816, which may be regarded, perhaps, as a recognition by the newspaper of the "rugged individualism" at that time, and through which the fatal Fenwick-Crittenden duel had its inception.

She was given her choice—glory as his betrayer, or death with his lips on hers.—Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

ROAD TO HEAVEN WAS MADE MORE ROCKY BY 18TH CENTURY PAINTER

Nurnberg, Germany, September 29.—Such serious and difficult business as putting "fresh feathers" in the wings of the Angel Gabriel and providing Saint Peter with a "new tooth", is revealed in an old document discovered in the dusty archives of an ancient Nurnberg church.

The document is the statement of account of a painter, who, in the year 1746, was commissioned to "touch up" the interior decorations of the church.

The bill asked compensation in the "florins and kreuzer" money of the times for the following items:

For changing the 10 commandments and freshening up the sixth, 2 fl. 24 kr.

For putting a new nose on one of the thieves on the cross, 1 fl. 30 kr.

Placing new feathers on the wings of the Angel Gabriel, 2 fl. 50 kr.

Enlarging the fires in hell and making the devil more malicious looking, 1 fl. 12 kr.

For renovating the Holy Magdalena, who was in danger of rotting away, 5 fl.

Making Moses more dignified and polishing up his brother, Aaron, 1 fl. 50 kr.

For inspecting the seven clever virgins and here and there improving on them, 7 fl.

For extending the end of the world, 2 fl. 45 kr.

For cleaning the Red Sea, which was terribly dirty, 3 fl. 17 kr.

For shoeing the horses on the wagon of Elias and making the road to heaven more rocky, 2 fl. 15 kr.

For putting additional malice in the face of Joseph, 5 fl.

For widening heaven and putting in a few more stars, 2 fl. 15 kr.

For putting a new tooth in St. Peter, 1 fl. 30 kr.

For silversmithing the 30 pieces of silver of Judas, 45 kr.

Altogether, for his refurbishing of Biblical history, as depicted on the walls of the church, the painter demanded a total of 50 florins and 13 kreuzer.

CHARLESTON CARDINALS DEFEAT HERRIN, ILL., 5-0

Charleston, October 1.—The Charleston Cardinals finally triumphed over the Herrin, Ill., Eagles, winning the game yesterday afternoon, 5-0. The first three games between the two teams resulted in 1-0 scores. Herrin coming out the winner all three times. In four games, only eight runs have been scored, somewhat of a record in itself.

Proffer, twirling for the Cardinals, shut the Eagles out with only one hit, a double in the third inning by Dunlap, the catcher. The Cardinals jumped on the offerings of Curlee for 10 hits, but erred two times to once for Herrin.

Charleston started their scoring in the second inning. Proffer, first man at bat, drawing a free ticket to first. Morrow was safe on first when Proffer was forced at second, but Ault singled to center advancing Morrow to third. Cambron grounded out. Ault advancing to second on the play. Morrow and Ault. Munger getting this scoring with a grounder.

Although this proved to be enough, the Cardinals put it on ice in the last half of the eighth. Hudson getting a one-baser thru the box with one gone. Proffer singled to center. Hudson taking third on the hit. Morrow singled to right, Hudson and Proffer denting the platter. After Ault had grounded out, advancing Morrow to second, Cambron singled to left to drive in Morrow for the final run. Cambron was out trying to steal second for the final out. Batteries for the game, Charleston, Proffer and Cambron, for Herrin, Curlee and Dunlap.

CAPITOL NOTES

Missouri has a comparatively new industry, which is becoming more and more important—the mining of dysore—according to Mrs. Alice Moss Ferris, secretary of the State Bureau of Mines. Dysore is a high-grade aluminum clay, used in the manufacture of chemicals, and the State's most important fields are found in Gasconade County.

Virtually all of the 27,500 corporations doing business in Missouri have filed their annual anti-trust affidavits and reports, according to Dwight H. Brown, whose office supervises the State corporation department. Most of the corporations responded earlier this year than last, thereby avoiding the penalty which the law prescribes. There are approximately 20,000 domestic and 7500 foreign corporations operating in Missouri.

There are approximately seventy-five non-profit, co-operative corporations in Missouri, each of which is required to pay a $10 fee annually.

Ira A. McBride, State supervisor of building and loan, is in Washington for a conference with John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation Board, and other members of the board. They will discuss the Housing Act and other matters pertaining to building and loan.

Three Missouri officials have gone to Boston, Mass., to attend a convention of the National Tax Association. Those making the trip are Forrest Smith, State auditor; Richard R. Nacy, State treasurer, and Andy W. Wilcox, chairman of the State Tax Commission.

Any industry will serve as a barometer of business conditions and recently the mining world has registered decided accelerations in the direction of prosperity. "Metal Mining", said Mining Review, a trade journal, a few weeks ago, "is walking right into a boom period that nothing can stop. Only the most pessimistic could hold fears for mining's future. There is a considerable amount of industrial expansion going on, public works are under way and accelerated home construction is anticipated".

The valuation of inundated lands of the Lake of the Ozarks, the property of the Union Light and Power Company, has been raised by the State Tax Commission, of which Andy W. Wilcox is chairman, to $56 per acre on 60,586 acres, being an increase of more than a million dollars above the valuation as fixed by county assessors. This land is situated in Miller, Camden, Morgan, Benton, Henry and St. Clair Counties.

Government Competition With Private Enterprise Detrimental to More Than 40 Industries!

Your Taxes Go to Keep the Government in the Retail Mercantile and Other Business

You may be amazed to learn that there is scarcely an enterprise, business or profession that has not been invaded to some extent by the Government. A recent report shows that unfair competitive interference by the Government affects at least 225 items of trade and service in more than two score industries. YOUR BUSINESS MIGHT BE NEXT. Every victory for Government invasion sets a dangerous precedent for further encroachment.

Government in business is dangerous to the rights and prosperity of every citizen. Hon. Joseph B. Shannon, Congressman from Missouri, chairman of a special committee to investigate the situation, made the following statement in a speech before the House of Representatives, June 16, 1934:

Those of us who advocate divestment of Government and business are right. In addition, we are on sound Democratic ground. The latest utterance of the Democratic Party on the subject was in the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention in 1932, which advocated—

The removal of Government from all kinds of private enterprise except where necessary to develop public works and natural resources in the common interest. And our President wrote:

I am for this platform 100 percent.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That plank was established to perpetuate and protect the rights of the citizens.

It is essential that you arouse yourself to the dangers that confront you from Government in business. The findings of the special committee showed most Government operated businesses not paying their way but being supported on the tax payers' money in direct competition to tax-paying private enterprises. Hundreds of protests from local merchants came to the committee. The danger has been recognized and complaints registered by such representative organizations as the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturer's Association, and the Federation of American Business.

"The evidence in general," reads the committee report, "indicates that the operations of the Federal Government in the field of private enterprise have reached a magnitude and diversity which threaten to reduce the private initiative, curtail the opportunities, and infringe upon the earning powers of taxpaying undertakings while steadily increasing the levies upon them."

Your public utility companies in Missouri pay over $3,000,000 a year in taxes for support of government or municipal plants, you would have to make up your share of the tax money thus lost. The building of municipal electric, gas or water plants rarely means lower rates, but always places a first mortgage on the property of every tax payer in the community and increases corporate taxes.

Completely outfitted, clothed, shaved, shined and shampooed by Government Shops and Industries

An example of the extent of government interference in business was vividly demonstrated when a man was brought before the special committee to investigate government competition with private enterprises, fully dressed and barbered by government retail stores and with a grip full of extra accessories for himself and wife all manufactured and sold by the government.

Your taxes go to keep the government in the Retail Mercantile Business, operated by inexperienced men and women who have nothing at stake and nothing of their own invested.

Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastian Sounds Session Keynote

Delivering the principal address of the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the ninth district of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs Tuesday evening and sounding the keynote of the convention theme, "Progress Consists in Eternal Seeking", Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastian of Butler, president of the State Federation, urged session delegates and visitors to adjust their manner of living to present day requirements.

To illustrate the need of adjustment, Mrs. Chastian reviewed aspects of material progress which had confronted Americans during the last twenty years. In this year women of the nation are offered a great opportunity for constructive work, she said, relating that an acquaintance once told her women's clubs signified interference in behalf of those social and economic problems which require attention. Within their own groups, club women seek to know more about life, and their work, notable in the past, must be continued for the consummation of outstanding achievements.

Considering each of the divisions under which women's clubs work, Mrs. Chastian pointed to the pressing need for still further social reform, including the abolition of child labor and the sterilization of the unfit, since the funds required to tend the mentally unfit are far too large in comparison with those spent in educating deserving persons.

The crowd which heard Mrs. Chastian and Charles H. Compton of St. Louis, president of the American Library Association, who commended the women's clubs, saying that 80 per cent of all libraries have been established because of the initiative of women, and who sought support of the women for the Missouri Library Commission, filled the auditorium of the Methodist Episcopal church, where all sessions of the convention were held.

The program was opened Tuesday evening with an invocation by the Rev. E. H. Orear, greetings by Robert Dempster, city attorney, who officiated because of the illness of Dr. G. W. Presnell, and a response by Mrs. C. E. Carleton of Farmington. Placed throughout the remainder of the program were solos by Mrs. Gale Curtright of Columbia, formerly of Poplar Bluff, Mrs. E. H. Orear of Sikeston, Mrs. K. C. Weber of Farmington, and Mrs. C. S. Keaton of Cairo.

Including visitors, who came from towns throughout Southeast Missouri, approximately 200 women attended sessions of the

Before they adjourned, members of the board adopted the following resolutions which were presented to them by Mrs. Chastian:

1. That every club in M. F. W. C. send in at least one paid subscription for the "Clubwoman" G. F. W. C.
2. That the M. F. W. C. continue its interest in and work for joint Foundation Fund of the G. F. W. C. and the M. F. W. C. on the basis of $2.50 per member for those clubs belonging to G. F. W. C. This fund to be divided on a 50-50 basis.
3. That we complete the Fund that will assure the Missouri Bell in the Washington Memorial National Carillon at Valley Forge.
4. That the M. F. W. C. reaffirm its endorsement of the proposed Child Labor Amendment and pledge ourselves to work actively for its ratification in Missouri by the Legislature that convenes in January, 1935.
5. That the M. F. W. C. reaffirm its stand in temperance and record itself as
 - a. Opposing the return of the saloon
 - b. Recommending that temperance instruction should be emphasized in our public school system, calling attention to the evil effect of the use of alcohol.
6. From the resolutions adopted at the national council meeting held at Hot Springs, Ark., in May of this year, the following recommendation of Mrs. Chastian was also accepted:
 - a. Whereas, certain types of crime are perpetrated by organized groups of gangsters who do not confine their unlawful activities to one locality but take advantage of improved methods of transportation and communication, and of the limited powers possessed by the State authorities in pursuing fugitive criminals; and whereas, the Department of Justice has presented to Congress a program contained in a series of bills which will permit the Federal Government in a co-operative manner to supplement to State Law Enforcement activities; Be it resolved, that the M. F. W. C. endorse the Crime Prevention and Crime Control Bills and press those crime prevention and control bills which remain unacted and which may come up at the next session of Congress.
 7. That the M. F. W. C. express to the President of the United States and Senators Nye and Vandenberg our wholehearted approval and interest in the investigation of munitions activities, which is now in progress, and that we are looking to a day when such traffic shall not be permitted.
 8. That the clubs of M. F. W. C. undertake the study of Unemployment Insurance and Old Age Pensions and Women's Equal Rights Amendment during the autumn of 1934 so that they may be in position to register their opinion of the legislative proposals in Missouri.

9. That the M. F. W. C. endorse the general principle and purpose of Senate Bill 2800, introduced by Senator Copeland in the 73d Congress—generally called the Pure Food and Drugs Bill.

Members of the State Board of the Missouri Federation who were here are: Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastian, Butler, president; Mrs. Martha Taaffe, Carthage, first vice-president; Mrs. M. H. Muchall, St. Louis, second vice-president; Mrs. C. L. Joslyn, Charleston, recording secretary; Mrs. T. W. Talbot, Fayette, corresponding secretary; Miss Jessie Black, Ellsberry, treasurer.

Miss Jean McCaw, Rolla, chairman of the local fund; Mrs. J. P. Hinton, Hannibal, American citizenship; Miss Amelia Wetherell, Carthage, law observance; Mrs. L. C. Sutherland, St. Joseph, American home; Miss Pauline Humphries, Warrensburg, education; Mrs. K. C. Martin, Albany, public welfare; Miss Anna Weir, Sedalia, community service.

Mrs. J. L. Griffin, Marysville, first district president; Miss Leona Koehler, Kansas City, second district president; Mrs. J. C. Mills, Kirksville, third district president; Mrs. James Dyer, Troy, fourth district president; Mrs. Shelton Lessley, Slater, fifth district president; Mrs. Harry Bissett, Springfield, sixth district president; Mrs. Dan Bartholomew, Joplin, seventh district president; Mrs. J. T. Davis, St. Louis, eighth district president; Mrs. Nellie Smith, Poplar Bluff, ninth district president.

During Tuesday afternoon, when delegates to the ninth district convention arrived and registered, Mrs. H. P. Kinsolving of Malden, district chairman of art, presided at an unusually varied and noteworthy art and antique exhibit, at which members of a Jackson woman's club presented an old-fashioned skit. At the same time Mrs. J. L. Lindsay of Poplar Bluff, district chairman of library, discussed different phases of library work with women who are particularly interested in that part of the organization's activities.

One hundred and sixty persons attended the banquet Tuesday evening, which was served by members of the Russell-Bradley Missionary Society in the basement of the Methodist church.

This meeting, the opening session of the district convention, was opened by Mrs. Nellie Smith, who soon placed it in the charge of Mrs. Arch Russell, the toastmistress. In addition to an invocation and two soprano solos, persons present at the banquet heard brief greetings by Mrs. Chastian and by the State Board members, who were introduced before delegates and visitors adjourned to the church auditorium for the evening meeting.

Throughout Wednesday delegates to the convention were in session, transacting important business, hearing reports of individual clubs and of work conducted by district chairmen. Women of the Christian church served 140 women at the luncheon at which divisional activity was discussed.

Throughout the day, the business program was supplemented with musical numbers by talented singers and musicians.

THE EDITOR
SAYS—

The Standard mechanical force has turned out quite a bit of printing this season for cotton gins in this section and the following shows that the work gives satisfaction: "We wish to congratulate your company on the excellent work and service extended on this order. We have formerly used outside firms in this type of work and we are glad to know there is somebody at home who can get the job done right!"

Barney Waggoner has purchased an acre of ground on Highway 60 east of the camping ground beyond the shoe factory on which he expects to erect a large sales barn for the handling of horses and mules. He has been operating a sales barn on Ranney Street for several years, but finds the premises crowded.

The architecture of this barn will be attractive, the foreground to be landscaped and set with shrubs and flowers, the building to be painted.

Mr. Waggoner informs us that objection to the erection of this barn has been made by some property owners in that section, but wishes to assure them that his barn will be kept sanitary at all times and will not be a nuisance or a menace.

Customers from the South have taken advantage of the offerings of Mr. Waggoner and visit his market in great numbers.

Whether true or not, it has come to us that a pre-election trade has been made to slip a man into the remaining two years to run of the county treasurer, in case C. E. Felker is elected collector. If such a trade has been made ahead of time then it should be upset and the Governor informed of the same in order that he may appoint to the unexpired term a working Democrat who needs the job and not a man who has held office for years.

Mr. Wolf, of the Wolf House Furnishing Co., has placed Miss Sylvia Goldstein in his bookkeeping department to add further tone, dignity and good looks to his furniture store.

Section 6763, Revised Statutes of Missouri for 1929, gives a prisoner the right of jury trial before a police judge in cities of the third class of which Sikeston is one, provided a jury is demanded. Therefore the ordinance passed by the Council Monday night may be repealed at a later meeting.

The babe that was almost born in a manager, but in a car, and that no one wanted, not even the young mother, will be sent to an orphan asylum in St. Louis by our good priest, Father Wood, where we hope God will smile on the innocent babe in such a manner that he will grow to be a good and useful citizen, though without the loving care of a mother. We have an idea that through life this mother will always have before her the image of this babe and wonder if he lived or died.

Nine years ago Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sarsar came to Sikeston with a big stock of merchandise, big crop prospects and big expectations. Two months after their arrival, bad weather and the depression begun and their fight for existence commenced. After all these years he and his good wife are at the same stand and notwithstanding the vicissitudes neither have been heard to complain but always meet you with a smile and a pleasant word. May the future bring to them good health and bountiful financial returns.

All know of the keen rivalry existing between the Sikeston and Charleston athletic teams and all know there will be every physical effort put forth tonight (Friday) to win, therefore, a record crowd is expected to be present on the local grounds at 7:30 when the game is scheduled to begin. The police and patrol are expected to keep the sidelines from crowding the field in order that no interference will be complained of by either team. It is likewise requested that Sikeston fans occupy the bleachers and the grounds on the south side of the field while Charleston fans will have full sway on the north side. Yell to your heart's content, but don't get either rough or personal. May the best team win and all be satisfied with the results, even if disappointed. A request has been made of the engineer of Division 10, State Highway Department, to permit the strip of road now closed between the Scott County line and Bertrand, be opened for one way traffic for this one night.

After discussing, arguing, acting and deliberating the action, and replacing one ordinance with another, councilmen Monday evening amended their ordinance concerning a purchasing committee, which has caused widespread controversy, and left members of the Board of Public Works unhindered in their activity.

The new ordinance, which was introduced by Barney Forrester and unanimously passed by aldermen, states that ordinance 1231, which regulates the purchase of merchandise for the city, "shall not be applicable to purchases made by the Board of Public Works". It became effective at once since it was signed Monday night by Dr. G. W. Presnell.

The body of the original ordinance, number 1231, which was unanimously approved by the six councilmen who met for a special session on September 21, is printed below.

"The Mayor of the City of Sikeston, Mo., is hereby vested with authority to appoint a Purchasing Committee, and shall appoint said committee within a reasonable time after the passage of this ordinance.

"The said Purchasing Committee shall be composed of three members, appointed from the regularly elected councilmen of the City of Sikeston, one of whom shall be designated as chairman by the mayor.

"The members of the said Purchasing Committee shall serve at the will of the Mayor.

"Hereafter all purchases of any kind made by, in behalf of, or for the use of, the City of Sikeston, its officers, or any department thereof, shall be made in the following manner:

"(a) All purchases amounting in total cost to less than $3.00 shall be purchased by the officer or department desiring them.

"(b) All purchases amounting in total cost to the city of $3.00 to $25.00, shall be purchased by the officer or department desiring the item; before such purchase can be made, however, it must be approved in writing by the chairman of the Purchasing Committee or by both the other members.

"In the event of absence from the city of the Chairman and one or both members, the approval must be secured from the mayor.

"(c) All purchases amounting in total cost to the City of more than $25.00 and less than $300.00 must be approved in writing by a majority of the purchasing committee, before such purchase may be made.

"(d) All purchases amounting in total cost to $300 or more, except fuel oil, must be approved by ordinance, regularly passed by the City Council, before such purchase may be made.

"Any officer or employee of the City of Sikeston who shall violate any of the sections, or parts of sections, of this ordinance, shall automatically forfeit his office or position, and the mayor shall declare the same vacant upon presentation of satisfactory proof of the violation.

At Monday night's session, Joe Matthews, who was not present when ordinance 1231 was approved, introduced an ordinance to repeal the one creating the purchasing committee, indicating that the councilmen had acted quickly and unwisely and should immediately reconsider their decision in order to allow the Board of Public Works to function in the manner it thought best.

Ordinance number 1231 was a very bad one, Lyman Bowman, a member of the Board of Public Works said, adding that the Board could not give its customers superior service, especially in times of emergency, if the ordinance were left in force. E. P. Coleman, Jr., also a member of the Board, endorsed Mr. Bowman's statements, saying that the Board was intended to remain entirely non-partisan and to be allowed to manage its affairs alone. It was indicated that the ordinance reflected on the integrity and business judgment of the Board members. J. F. Cox, chairman of the Board, who also attended the meeting, did not speak.

Dr. G. W. Presnell, who said he introduced the ordinance after numerous requests for it, stated the repeal of an action so soon after its approval would place the council in a "bad light" and requested only that the ordinance be given a thirty-day trial. This suggestion was opposed by councilmen, notably Mr. Matthews, E. H. Smith and Lyman Waggoner, the latter two saying that the ordinance had been passed hastily and that they had regretted their approval of it soon after the meeting.

When aldermen asked for and obtained a vote on the new ordinance, only Hubert Boyer, Barney Forrester, and T. F. Rafferty opposed repeal of the ordinance, while Mr. Matthews, G. C. Baker, Mr. Smith, Mr. Waggoner and Otis Hahs, approved it. Mr. Forrester was appointed chairman of the purchasing committee, and Mr. Boyer and Mr. Rafferty were named members by Dr. Presnell soon after passage of the original ordinance.

After Dr. Presnell indicated that he would veto Mr. Matthews' ordinance and by that action prevent it from becoming effective for at least thirty days, councilmen further discussed the matter. Mr. Matthews saying that although he did not intend to slap his fellow aldermen, he considered it unlikely that two members of the purchasing committee who had been on the council for less than six months and the third who had served one term and part of another were any more capable of handling the Board of Public Works' affairs than Board members themselves. He added that before the passage of ordinance 1231 there had been in force a ruling concerning city purchases of more than $5.

Mr. Forrester, introducing his ordinance, which was later passed, withdrew his opposing vote after a brief tilt with Mr. Bowman, during which Mr. Bowman said he now had less "respect" for Mr. Forrester.

Although the councilmen then considered for a time passing Mr. Forrester's ordinance, which only amended an ordinance which had several minutes before obliterated by their vote, they at last consulted Dr. Presnell, and learning that he would not veto Mr. Forrester's ordinance if it were approved, they decided, on Mr. Waggoner's motion and Mr. Baker's second, to erase from the council's minutes the previous veto and its attendant discussions. They then unanimously passed Mr. Forrester's ordinance.

A second ordinance, passed at Monday's meeting, to save the city revenue, according to Robert Dempster, city attorney, provided that "all cases arising within the City of Sikeston, for any violation of a municipal or city ordinance, shall be tried before the police judge of the City, and in no case shall any defendant be permitted to have a jury trial for any violation thereof". The ordinance, which was approved almost unanimously, Grover Baker casting the only dissenting vote, was termed unconstitutional by Judge Jos. W. Myers, who attended the meeting. Mr. Dempster, however, said he believed it was constitutional.

The one-hour parking limit which has been in effect on the downtown portion of Front and North West Main Streets for some time, was lifted by the councilmen after they heard objections to it reported to Mr. Hahs, Geo. Lough and Clay A. Mitchell, who interviewed most of the merchants whose business houses are located in the part of town, where it is enforced.

Although about half of the merchants did not disapprove of one-hour parking, they said, the rest were vigorously opposed to it since they believed it removed business from Sikeston, especially that of out-of-town residents who came here to spend a day in shopping. The present method of parking is satisfactory to the merchants, according to the interviewers. Some of the business men suggested a two-hour parking limit, but no action, other than repeal of the present limit, was taken by the councilmen Monday night.

The matter of purchasing a new fire truck was referred to a committee composed of Mr. Matthews, as chairman, and Mr. Boyer and Mr. Hahs, after A. C. Barrett, city clerk, had read a letter sent here last month from an official of the Missouri Inspection Bureau in regard to urgency of buying a new fire engine pumper for the city.

"The age and reduced capacity of the automobile fire engine pumper constitutes a deficiency in the public fire protection for the present N. B.-8 (4½) Class fire insurance rating", the letter stated.

John A. Young, fire chief, substantiated this, adding that the fire insurance rate here will undoubtedly be raised if a new pumper is not bought. The inspection bureau letter, dated September 7, is the third sent to Sikeston, urging officials to buy a new automobile pumper of at least 500 gallons a minute capacity and to retain the old truck in reserve.

Mr. Young also added that both the new and the old trucks could be kept in the present fire truck garage and the old one used for all small fires. A representative of the General Fire Truck Corporation in St. Louis and E. G. Buchan appeared before the council in behalf of the companies for which they work.

A third ordinance passed by the council prohibited the staging in Sikeston of a walkathon, marathon dance, or dancathon and provided a fine of between $10 and $100 for conviction of a person on a charge of sponsoring or erecting such enterprises. A fourth ordinance, which was tabled, was intended to prohibit the erection in the city of pens or barns where livestock would be raised, bred, or sold.

proval of it soon after the meeting.

When aldermen asked for and obtained a vote on the new ordinance, only Hubert Boyer, Barney Forrester, and T. F. Rafferty opposed repeal of the ordinance, while Mr. Matthews, G. C. Baker, Mr. Smith, Mr. Waggoner and Otis Hahs, approved it. Mr. Forrester was appointed chairman of the purchasing committee, and Mr. Boyer and Mr. Rafferty were named members by Dr. Presnell soon after passage of the original ordinance.

The matter of purchasing a new fire truck was referred to a committee composed of Mr. Matthews, as chairman, and Mr. Boyer and Mr. Hahs, after A. C. Barrett, city clerk, had read a letter sent here last month from an official of the Missouri Inspection Bureau in regard to urgency of buying a new fire engine pumper for the city.

"The age and reduced capacity of the automobile fire engine pumper constitutes a deficiency in the public fire protection for the present N. B.-8 (4½) Class fire insurance rating", the letter stated.

Brown Shoe Factory To Open In Caruthersville

In this issue appears a display advertisement featuring the big opening day of the new Brown Shoe Factory at Caruthersville on Thursday, October 11.

Residents of Caruthersville are planning to stage a huge celebration on that day. The American Legion fair will be in progress during that week, and committees representing the shoe company, the business interests, and the American Legion Fair Association have combined in their efforts to make next Thursday a day long to be remembered in this part of the State.

The coming to Caruthersville of the Brown Shoe Company, it is thought, will mean the turning point toward ever-lasting prosperity in this section and especially to Caruthersville and vicinity. The Brown Shoe Company is rated as one of the really big shoe concerns in the world. They have accepted from the people at Caruthersville the Menzies' Plant with an increase in the capacity of approximately fifty per cent and have spent nearly $100,000 in the improvement of the property and the installation of necessary equipment. The plant will open with a boom and will be the cause of the employment of approximately six hundred people, to which number additions will be made from time to time.

On the day of the gigantic celebration, a big parade will open the ceremonies for the day. The committees in charge anticipate a parade of one mile in length. It will be led by Col. George W. Phipps, of the 140th Infantry, as Grand Marshal, with military units of that organization and the celebrated 140th Infantry Band, with Lieutenant Oscar T. Honey as director.

The Hayti Municipal Band will lead the industrial section of the parade and the local American Legion Band will head the school and civic divisions. Organizations such as Rotary Clubs, Lions Clubs and Lifters Clubs will be invited to participate in the parade. The committee on floats reports active interest being taken in them.

After the dedication ceremonies are over, the program will again go under way at the fair grounds, where the American Legion boys have prepared a very interesting and remarkable program for the afternoon. They are featuring the Brown Shoe Company Derby where the winner will be presented a loving cup and a beautiful wreath of roses from the vice-president of the Shoe Company, who will be a guest of honor for the big day.

Republicans Reported To Be Making Untrue Statements On Cotton

Because it has been reported that some Republican candidates for county offices have been telling cotton farmers they cannot sell their cotton unless they get tax exemption certificates, and because it is also reported that farmers are believing these statements, which are not true, some explanation of the cotton situation is obviously necessary.

Farmers can sell their cotton, and they can receive in cash about 8 cents a pound for it. The tax of $5.00 a hundred is held by ginners until tax exemption certificates are obtained. Then ginners may take the certificates to the ginners and draw the $5.67 which was previously held up to cover the tax in case the tax exemption certificates were not secured by the farmers.

According to one authority, the indications are that the regular grower who cooperated in the reduction campaign will be able to sell his cotton without paying any tax, and that all other growers will likely be able to sell their tax free. Even on cotton on which a tax must be paid the grower still receives about 8 cents a pound, a sum considerably more than he obtained for cotton during the last two years of the Hoover administration and more than he would probably be getting if the government's cotton reduction program had not been inaugurated.

It is obvious that a program which reduced the production from around fifteen million bales to about ten million will undoubtedly enhance the price of the product. Further, in addition to the increased price, those growers participating in the campaign are being paid by the government for the acres which they have left out of production.

The Republican candidates, says one county leader, state that all the Roosevelt relief programs should be abolished, but "not one of them suggests anything that they expect to do for the farmer to take the place of this program, so evidently they intend to leave the farmer as they always have before, to take care of himself and root, hog, or die, although they have always taken good care of the big corporations, manufacturers, and the industrial east."

They say that Mr. Roosevelt's program to help the farmer and the poor man is unconstitutional and socialistic, but not one of them saw anything of that nature when the Hoover administration furnished ninety million dollars to Charles Daves' bank or when they furnished large sums of money to the railways, manufacturers, and other big corporations.

Three To Attend FCA Banquet In St. Louis

John G. Powell, C. H. Denman, and C. L. Blanton, Sr., and possibly several Sikeston landowners, including G. B. Greer, will go to St. Louis Monday to attend a dinner which will be given in honor of William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration at Washington, D. C., at 6:30 o'clock at the Jefferson Hotel.

Invitations to the dinner have been sent to residents of Missouri, Illinois, and Arkansas who are interested in agriculture, and a large attendance is expected.

After spending Monday conferring with F. W. Niemeyer, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration in St. Louis, and after attending the banquet in the evening, Governor Myers, in company with the commissioners of the four units of the Farm Credit Administration, who will journey to St. Louis with him, will devote Tuesday and Wednesday to a survey of agricultural problems in sections of the three states embraced by the sixth district. Most of the two days will be consumed with an inspection of cotton and rice fields in Southeast Missouri and Arkansas.

The farm credit officials who will accompany Governor Myers are A. S. Goss, land bank commissioner; G. M. Brennan, intermediate credit commissioner; S. M. Garwood, production credit commissioner; and F. W. Peck, co-operative bank commissioner.

The Farm Credit Administration of St. Louis, as does each regional office, consists of four units, the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, the Production Credit Corporation and the Bank for Co-operatives. The Federal Land Bank of St. Louis on its own account and as agent of the Land Bank Commissioner makes long-term amortized loans to farmers on farm real estate security. These loans are closed in the government guaranteed bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

The Production Credit Corporation of St. Louis having organized ninety local production credit associations in this district supervises their operation. The local associations make short-term loans to farmers for agricultural production purposes.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis discounts the farmers' notes for the production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, and other primary lending agencies. The funds for this purpose are obtained largely from the sale of Intermediate Credit Bank debentures to the investing public.

The St. Louis Bank for Co-operatives makes loans to farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations. Loans are made to provide working capital for cooperatives and to provide funds for the purchase, lease, or construction of buildings and other physical facilities.

Since the beginning of the emergency farm mortgage refinancing campaign on May 1, 1933, the four St. Louis divisions of the Farm Credit Administration have made loans totaling more than $120,000,000 to Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois farmers, Mr. Niemeyer said.

C. H. Denman

Lexington, Miss.,
October 2, 1934

Mr. Clint H. Denman, Publisher,
Sikeston Herald,
Sikeston, Missouri.

Dear Sir:

Your editorial of Thursday, September 27, 1934, in the Sikeston Herald under the caption "Suspicious", has come to my attention and to clear up your suspicion, I will make a reply.

First, my visit was only a passing visit and I neither met with the City Council nor the Board of Public Works. In fact, I did not see but one councilman and that was Mr. Joseph L. Matthews, and the subject of the light plant was not discussed.

Second, I feel complimented that you said "There are certain people in Sikeston who still desire Mr. Pepper's return as Superintendent of the plant", etc. I do not know who those people are who want me to return, but I do believe I have quite a few friends in Sikeston, but can't believe you can be one of my friends. I do not know why, unless it is because I asked you to pay your electric light and power bill when several months past due.

I was more of a friend to you than you were to me. Instead of discontinuing your electric service for non-payment of your bills, I finally let you have printing and advertising to help you out, while at the same time, your competitor, The Sikeston Standard, was paying promptly and discounting bills. I number among my mistakes while at Sikeston, helping you as I did and penalizing The Sikeston Standard, a staunch supporter of the municipal plant.

Mr. Denman, before the City built its light plant you were against the idea and fought it through your paper and when I as superintendent, solicited your business for the City's plant, you reluctantly let the City have your business. Your dislike for me comes naturally, because I was its superintendent.

You will have to admit that I tried in every way to befriend you. For instance, I personally repaired apparatus in your printing plant and did not charge you one penny, making it a personal favor to you. I believed you to be a good christian gentleman and tried to make you a friend of mine and am sorry that I failed to do so.

Mr. Denman, don't get "Suspicious" when I come to town—just ask me as to man to man and I will "come clean" and you will get the true story and will not have to write next time under "Suspicious".

I can't preach like you can, but I believe you will be better off if you will not be so "Suspicious" and get behind your Mayor and City Council and help your Board of Public Works to run your Light Plant in a manner that will be beyond "Suspicion".

Very truly yours,
DAN G. PEPPER,
Box 334,
Lexington, Miss.

$5 IN SMALL CHANGE

TAKEN FROM SELLARD'S

Between $5 and $6 in small change was stolen from the cash register drawer of the Sellard's Meat Market sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. Nothing else was disturbed. Breaking a window pane in the rear part of the store, which is located on East Malone avenue, the thief apparently put his hand in the hole he had made and unlocked the window.

Then he climbed in, and after taking the money, which was all in 5-cent, 10-cent, quarter and half dollar pieces, he left in the same manner by which he had entered.

No clues which might lead to the identification of the robber have yet been discovered. Last month a fire, caused by defective wiring, burned a large hole in the roof of the market, effecting an estimated damage of $150.

"I Saw the Tail Wagging the Dog"

I didn't get to go to the World's Fair this summer, nor did I get to go to the last circus that was in town, and I've never been within ten miles of the Buried City at Wickliffe. In fact, "I ain't been nowhere nor seen nothing". That is, not until last Monday night, when the situation was remedied. I've been hearing so much about the Board of Public Works and the City Council, that I decided to get some first-hand information concerning the workings of these two august bodies, and so I took the privilege, and had the honor, of attending their last meeting, on October 1st, and to say that I was delightedly entertained and edified would be expressing it very mildly.

Not a great amount of energy was expended by our City Fathers on the usual preliminaries of motions, reports and allowances of account. Then the presentation of new ordinances was announced, and some two or three of minor importance were duly and regularly read and re-read three times which placed them upon the calendar for approval or disapproval. Everything was serene and harmonious, but I could sense that it was the calm before the storm. The atmosphere grew heavy and then heavier. But I was not long in my wonderment of what the tense situation portended: An ordinance was introduced to repeal Ordinance 1231.

Ordinance 1231 was the ordinance recently adopted creating a Purchasing Committee for the City. The duty of this committee was to supervise the buying of any article for the City, which amounted to more than $3.00. This is purely a business policy which is used by all large business enterprises, including the Highway Department, the Shoe Factory, the Scott County Milling Company, and the oil companies. If it is a good thing for business, why wouldn't it be a good thing for the City of Sikeston? And why should any employee, or appointee, of the City raise such a howl because his buying (with City money of course) should be supervised by the City? I failed to understand the opposition and no cogent reason was given for the repeal of this ordinance, but after much discussion the Mayor announced that a vote would be taken to repeal it. The poll was as follows: Those voting to repeal the ordinance—Baker, Smith, Waggoner, Matthews, and Haha; those voting to keep it—Boyer, Forrester, and Rafferty. Now five votes are enough to pass an ordinance, unless it is vetoed by the Mayor, in which case it would require six votes. With all eyes in the room trained on the Mayor, he announced that he would veto the repeal ordinance!

It was then I began holding out to my hat! The atmosphere was surcharged with poisonous gas emanating from different angles, and opinions. The discussion was long and interesting; there was coercion, intimidation and cajolery galore, and many left-handed compliments were passed. Finally one of the councilmen voting against repeal requested the Council to permit him to change his vote; this was agreed to and the Mayor's veto could avail nothing. An amendment was then offered which left the purchasing in force, to apply to all except the Board of Public Works, who were given full and unlimited freedom to buy when they please, from whom they please, and as much as they please, with the City paying the bills for said purchases without question.

Of course, Mr. Daniels, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Boardman and Mr. Young are all appointed to office just as the Board of Public Works is, and what would the Board of Aldermen say and do if they came in and did not request a change of ordinance which did not suit them, but demanded its repeal? If the Board of Public Works can compel the City Council to pass or repeal any ordinance they do not like, do you not agree that it is a case of the tail wagging the dog?

Oh well, it was a pretty good show; I was both amused and amazed! And as it was getting late, anyway, I left and went home and had a nightmare!

MISSOURI FARMERS' OUTLOOK OPTIMISTIC

Although farmers in numerous sections of the State suffered greatly this summer, reports from newspaper editors who are members of the Missouri Press Association to the executive secretary, Charles W. Keller, indicate that farmers are now more optimistic than ordinarily and that business and industry are generally improving.

Southeast Missouri, termed the State's garden spot by residents and visitors alike, is perhaps best prepared for the winter. In Pemiscot county, according to the reports, the corn and cotton crops were two-thirds of normal or better and the yields of other crops were fair. Demands for relief dropped 75 per cent because of the advent of the cotton picking season, and a shoe factory in Caruthersville is expected to relieve unemployment still further. In Dunklin county 181 more carloads of watermelons were shipped this year than last and the price was higher than in 1933. Benefit corn-hog and cotton payments and a large addition to a shirt factory will help county residents defeat the depression.

Even in the northeast and northwest part of the State, where the drought was unusually severe, editors reported that fall pastures were splendid, benefit payments had provided needed money, and coal mines, reopened at the end

CORN-HOG SIGNERS VOTE 2 TO 1 FOR CONTINUANCE OF PROGRAM IN 1935

Benton, October 3.—At a referendum meeting here this week Scott County Corn-Hog signers voted 2 to 1 to continue the Corn-Hog program for 1935. In the same proportion they voted to have a single farm unit contract covering grains and livestock for the year 1935.

It was the opinion of many attending the meeting that the opposition showed its full strength to this plan, while many of those in favor of the plan failed to vote. Of the 780 contract signers in

Scott County eligible to vote only 305 voted. Tywappity Township was the banner township for voting in favor of the plan, the vote being 10 to 1 there in favor. All townships voted in favor of it with the exception of Kelso Township, and the reason they gave for opposing it was that there was no severe penalty placed on the non-signers similar to the Bankhead Bill on cotton. It really was not fair to the plan that this arrangement entered into it as the Agricultural Adjustment Administration keeps all of these programs on a voluntary plan, and the Bankhead Act, which is a compulsory plan, is not a part of the AAA program.

ADAPTED FROM THE METRO-GOLDWYN MAYER PICTURE BEATRICE FABER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Diane Lovering has been sent on a trip to Buenos Aires by her lover, Richard Field, forty-eight and wealthy, so that she may forget the scene that had ensued when his wife had found out about Diane. An adventurous shipboard acquaintance with Mike Bradley, a rancher in Buenos Aires, made when the boat docks. Now, in the lobby of her hotel, she suddenly finds herself lifted in a pair of strong arms and borne out of the hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER SIX

A Trip to the Sun
Setting her struggling figure down on the steps, Mike confronted her with a broad grin. Like Diane, he was dressed in riding clothes.

"Here's the guide—but the horses await out on the Bradley ranch and the Bradley car awaits without—"

"Delight at seeing him again and indignation at his summary treatment struggled together on Diane's face. Finally, the first won. "But—"

"You scared me," she gasped.

"Living up to your 'boogie' man role," he laughed. "Thought I'd take you off your feet. And I did."

"But—how did you happen to be here?"

Mike glanced at her casually. "I thought I'd drop around and say hello to the Wilsons. Nice little cottage they have here. Lots of servants and guests. Are they home?"

Diane knew she was caught but decided to make the best of it. "No," she said gravely, eyes twinkling. "But they left word for me to mind the children. I was taking the twins to see the executions on the Plaza."

Mike measured an imaginary child. "Little Otis is tall for his age, isn't he? Or do they have him stretched?"

"Mike—are you a bloodhound or is this just accidental?"

"I'm a bloodhound who can read trunk checks when a lady carelessly leaves her trunk outside her stateroom."

Diane looked at his attire. "But you know all my doings and—"

"Mr. Partos, the manager, is a friend of mine. He owes me money," he added with a shrug.

"So he told you I was going shopping at ten o'clock?"

"Exactly. And I knew you didn't know about our stow here. They don't like saddle horses trotting up and down the aisles and jumping over the notions counter, so I thought you'd like to do your shopping out on the Bradley ranch where horses are horses and not candidates for the bullring."

"I love to, Mike," Diane said simply.

"That's better than I hoped." He helped her into the car. "Now if I learn to play that trombone in six easy lessons I ought to be really popular."

The car started and gained speed. Once out of the city proper, Diane enjoyed the passing scene in quiet contentment. She silently approved the vista of great level plains covered with grasses of all sorts. They gave her a smoothed out feeling of peace.

Mike's ranch was the typical hacienda type clearing of buildings, corrals and barns. In the back the pampas grasses stretched into the distance.

Johnny greeted them as if Diane's presence were the most natural thing in the world. The horses were saddled and for four hours she and Mike galloped and trotted through the countryside at perfect understanding with each other and the world. Very little was said. But their long silences were eloquent with meaning.

Tired again, tired and hungry, they entered the hacienda. It was large and a little crude. On the walls were some pictures of horses and the head of a tapir. It was typical of a room lacking women, yet clean and vigorous. A luncheon table was set for three in the middle. Diane pulled off her hat and sank into a chair.

"Now I'll get a good look at this place."

Mike watched her covertly. "Not much to interest a woman—"

"Don't know about that. Uh—how many women have seen it?"

"I don't know. How about some lunch?"

"I could eat a horse."

"Probably what you'll get if Johnny's had anything to do with the ordering," Pablo, he called, "bring lunch in."

Pablo, a fat, jolly Portuguese with handle-bar mustaches, entered with a huge heaped tray. "Senor," he bowed, "she is beautiful."

"Shut up."

Pablo was hurt. He carefully placed a platter of cold chicken on the table. I wrenched the neck of two chickens—an "em cold"—for her. She is beautiful," he flung at Mike and ducked out the door.

Johnny came in and they attacked the food ravenously. The two chickens were picked clean and all three sat back in their chairs.

Mike turned to Diane. "Apologies—for anything that wasn't quite right. As I said—we're not used to fair visitors."

"It's a situation I've been trying to correct," Johnny assured her. "But suddenly very Southern."

"But old Cunnel Bradley, he's a man's man—with his horses and dogs and his pipe—"

"And hopes Majah Smith who 'tough continue to enter his loud and shrill lady friends in town," Mike interrupted.

"Diane laughed. "Of plantations needs womenfolk—"

"Not like the last one he turned up with."

"But she had such pretty gold teeth," Johnny pointed out.

"Uppah—and lowahs," Mike retorted.

Diane held up her glass of milk. "Anyhow—here's a luck to Mike Bradley and Johnny Smith—and that's in the wine of the country," she finished with unaffected sincerity.

Before he drank, Mike's eyes fastened on her in puzzled inquiry. But why so impersonal? They seemed to ask.

A few hours later Johnny and Diane were watching Mike in the round of the corral.

Mike rode toward them, turning this way and that, seeming, centaurlike, to be part of the horse. "It's a sight to carry away with you, eh?" Johnny said meaningfully as he started to walk off.

Diane's reply came slowly after him. "Yes, Johnny. It is."

Mike rode up and dismounted from the white horse he was riding. He grabbed a little foal that was trying to squeeze through the gate. "This one's Chili Beans. Her grandpa once won the Del Fuero Sweepstakes for speed and saved the mortgage. He's got a lot of horses to show his hocks to." Diane was watching his face. His hold on the foal relaxed. "You see—pretty harmless out here, aren't we? Like a day nursery. And you had to be and run away." He studied her.

"Why?"

"Mike—at this moment, the foal, loosened broke away with a leap and a swish of its tail.

"Whoa—"

"I'll head him off," Diane cried and went after him.

She and Mike spread, each to one side, following the foal into the pampas. Laughing and running they followed the foal's darting movements. But of a sudden he made a dash past Diane in the direction of the corral. Her plunge after him brought her to the ground. Mike, right behind, stumbled down beside her. Then their laughter died in their throats as their eyes met.

As Mike gathered her slowly to him, her arms went around his neck, and with an inaudible little murmur of endearment, her lips answered his kiss. Moments later, she moved back. Flushed with an exquisite ecstasy, she looked at him, stary-eyed.

"That's why I lied and ran away," she said softly.

Mike tipped her chin. "That's nothing to run away from, is it?"

Diane shook her head. "Just then you and I rushed high above the earth." She looked at the sky. "I don't know where—but we were all alone together—where nobody else will ever be—"

Mike kissed each finger separately. "We're going to settle down up there—"

"Right in the sun—where we can feel it beat down into us."

"However you spell it," Mike murmured into her hair. "It's love—whether there's a sun or a moon or it's raining."

Then, like all lovers, they asked the immemorial questions.

"On the boat—did you really know so soon?" Diane asked.

"I've known about somebody like you ever since I could think. When did you know?"

Her finger traced his lips. "I never thought about anybody like you. So I guess it must have been the minute I saw you."

Mike pressed his lips half against hers. "You're going to see me from now on, Mrs. Michael Bradley."

His words brought her to herself with a jar. Reality again faced her. She averted her gaze. "Now I know that's what I've wanted to hear you say—but I've never dared let myself think about it."

Mike touched her gently. "What have you dared think about?"

Diane writhed inwardly with pain. "Everything, your arms around me—everything, except being Mrs. Mike Bradley."

"Why?" Mike was frankly perturbed.

Diane's voice was laden with woe. She lowered her head. "Because perhaps I'm that kind of a girl. You see—her words came in a frightened rush. "There's another man—and he has a wife. But he pays my bills, too. Now—" her voice became a little shrill. "—what do you think of your future Mrs. Mike Bradley?"

Mike sucked in his breath. It made a harsh loud noise in the outdoor stillness. Not a muscle of his face moved. Diane drew back, frightened now at what she had done.

Fashion Marches On Fall Fashion Crop Ready With Slenderizing Styles

by Mme. LANE BRYANT
Noted Fashion Counselor

NEW YORK—The first fruits of the fall fashion crop show no signs of a drought this season. Instead, they offer choice pickings in the way of smart new dresses for the Larger Woman who seeks clothes that make her look tall and slender.

To get the effect of slenderizing, designers are featuring styles finished at the neckline with jabots, wide revers, and bows. Such treatment gives the illusion of "more dress and less woman." For it is true that whatever width is added at the top makes the hips look narrower.

The new dresses come both with and without separate jackets. The jackets are of various lengths, ranging from the hip length style to the full length separate coat. For the woman of an economical turn of mind, a dress-with-jacket offers the delightful advantage that it serves as a fall suit, and again as a spring suit when one's heavy winter coat is hung away.

Silks, woolsens, and lustrous velvets now come into their own and may be chosen with the assurance that they are correct. Satin, too, comes into the fashion picture. One fashion warning, however, must be

THE ARTIST Adah McRaven

I built a statue so divinely fair,
It seemed to breathe, take life and glow
No mortal could have held me in a spell,
But this creation that I worshiped so.

I bowed before this clay of mortal hands,
Asked nothing of this life but there to be,
Craving one glimpse of this my all,
Transporting me to heavenly ecstasy.

A storm arose, a mighty hurricane,
It crashed about my head and then
I woke with coming of the day,
And at my feet my shattered idol lay.

Vain fool, thy God hath set thee free,
To make the image of a sickly brain
Mold with thy hands if that is thy desire,
But leave the soul to me.

MISSOURI HISTORY

Courtesy Missouri Historical Society

Floyd C. Shoemaker
"That is a constructive insult for which I demand the satisfaction due a gentleman," probably was the reply Dr. Walter Fenwick, a physician of Ste. Genevieve, gave to Thomas T. Crittenden, attorney-general of the Territory of Louisiana, to whom he was carrying a challenge to a duel from his brother, Ezekiel Fenwick. Crittenden accepted the challenge and set the date of the duel on October 1, 1811, 123 years ago this week.

Both physician and lawyer were prominent citizens, each having won recognition in his respective profession in Ste. Genevieve. Crittenden, who was a member of the noted Crittenden family of Kentucky, was appointed attorney-general of the Territory of Louisiana by Governor Benjamin Howard on October 31, 1810. His brother, J. J. Crittenden, represented Kentucky four terms in the United States Senate and was attorney-general of the nation; and later, in 1880, his nephew, Thomas Theodore Crittenden, was elected governor of Missouri.

Fenwick also came from a well known Kentucky family and was considered an eminent physician in spite of his scant 36 years. He held a claim on 10,000 acres of land near Ste. Genevieve.

The events leading up to the meeting of October 1, 1811, grew out of a lawsuit in which Crittenden as a lawyer derided Ezekiel Fenwick, who was the defendant. Ezekiel, although he was rated as a physician as well as the owner of "a house of amusement", appears not to have commanded the respect of the community as did his brother, Walter. Crittenden refused to fight a duel with Ezekiel on the ground that Ezekiel was not a gentleman. The reply forced Dr. Walter Fenwick to make the quarrel his own. His reason for so doing was that Crittenden had said his brother was not a gentleman, and not that Crittenden had derided his brother in court. Such were the rules of the "code duello" of Missouri in the territorial era.

The importance of the principals of the duel may be gauged by the men who served as seconds. John Scott, who was later elected the last delegate to Congress from Missouri Territory and the first representative to Congress from the State of Missouri, was second for Crittenden. Fenwick's second was Henry Dodge, sheriff of the District of Ste. Genevieve, Indian fighter, and later a general in the War of 1812 and a member of the U. S. Senate from Wisconsin.

On October 1, 1811, the day set for the duel, the principals, accompanied by their seconds, crossed over to Moreau's Island, which was just below Ste. Genevieve. At the first volley Fenwick fell, mortally wounded. Crittenden was uninjured. Fenwick died the next day. He was survived by his widow, Julie, a daughter of Don Francisco Valle, Jr. Crittenden returned to Kentucky where he was elected to the legislature and later became secretary of state. He died in Louisville in 1832.

The pistols used in the Fenwick-Crittenden duel were of "very large bore" and had barrel 12 inches long. They were made by one of the two slave gunsmiths owned by John Smith T. The reputation of both the slaves and Smith for making weapons of high accuracy was widespread throughout the territory, and their finished products demanded high prices.

The St. Louis Louisiana Gazette made no mention of the Fenwick-Crittenden duel, although it was fatal to a doctor well known in the territory. The duel, while not unique, was at least unusual in that it was one of the few duels based on a "constructive insult".

The omission of any mention of the event from the columns of the territory's only newspaper was due, not to the negligence of its editor, but rather to the fact that at that time a newspaper was regarded as a disseminator of ideas rather than a "tattler of personal affairs".

The Gazette made no mention of any duel between the years of 1810 and 1816, which may be regarded, perhaps, as a recognition by the newspaper of the "rugged individualism" at that time, and through which the fatal Fenwick-Crittenden duel had its inception.

She was given her choice—glory as his betrayer, or death with his lips on hers—Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

ROAD TO HEAVEN WAS MADE MORE ROCKY BY 18TH CENTURY PAINTER

Nurnberg, Germany, September 29.—Such serious and difficult business as putting "fresh feathers" in the wings of the Angel Gabriel and providing Saint Peter with a "new tooth", is revealed in an old document discovered in the dusty archives of an ancient Nurnberg church.

The document is the statement of account of a painter, who, in the year 1746, was commissioned to "touch up" the interior decorations of the church.

The bill asked compensation in the "florins and kreuzer" money of the times for the following items:

For changing the 10 commandments and freshening up the sixth, 2 fl. 24 kr.

For putting a new nose on one of the thieves on the cross, 1 fl. 30 kr.

Placing new feathers on the wings of the Angel Gabriel, 2 fl. 50 kr.

Enlarging the fires in hell and making the devil more malicious looking, 1 fl. 12 kr.

For renovating the Holy Magdalena, who was in danger of rotting away, 5 fl.

Making Moses more dignified and polishing up his brother, Aaron, 1 fl. 50 kr.

For inspecting the seven clever virgins and here and there improving on them, 7 fl.

For extending the end of the world, 2 fl. 45 kr.

For cleaning the Red Sea, which was terribly dirty, 3 fl. 17 kr.

For shoeing the horses on the wagon of Elias and making the road to heaven more rocky, 2 fl. 15 kr.

For putting additional malice in the face of Joseph, 5 fl.

For widening heaven and putting in a few more stars, 2 fl. 15 kr.

For putting a new tooth in St. Peter, 1 fl. 30 kr.

For silencing the 30 pieces of silver of Judas, 45 kr.

Altogether, for his refurbishing of Biblical history, as depicted on the walls of the church, the painter demanded a total of 50 florins and 13 kreuzer.

CHARLESTON CARDINALS DEFEAT HERRIN, ILL. 5-0

Charleston, October 1.—The Charleston Cardinals finally triumphed over the Herrin, Ill. Eagles, winning the game yesterday afternoon, 5-0. The first three games between the two teams resulted in 1-0 scores. Herrin coming out the winner all three times. In four games, only eight runs have been scored, somewhat of a record in itself.

Proffer, twirling for the Cardinals, shut the Eagles out with only one hit, a double in the third inning by Dunlap, the catcher. The Cardinals jumped on the offerings of Curlee for 10 hits, but erred two times to once for Herrin.

Charleston started their scoring in the second inning. Proffer, first man at bat, drawing a free ticket to first. Morrow was safe on first when Proffer was forced at second, but Ault singled to center advancing Morrow to third. Cambron grounded out. Ault advancing to second on the play. Morrow and Ault Mungler finished this scoring with a grounder.

Although this proved to be enough, the Cardinals put it on ice in the last half of the eighth. Hudson getting a one-baser thru the box with one game. Proffer singled to center, Hudson taking third on the hit. Morrow singled to right, Hudson and Proffer denting the platter. After Ault had grounded out, advancing Morrow to second, Cambron singled to left to drive in Morrow for the final run. Cambron was out trying to steal second for the final out. Batteries for the game, Charleston, Proffer and Cambron, for Herrin, Curlee and Dunlap.

CAPITOL NOTES

Missouri has a comparatively new industry, which is becoming more and more important—the mining of dysore—according to Mrs. Alice Moss Ferris, secretary of the State Bureau of Mines. Dysore is a high-grade aluminum clay, used in the manufacture of chemicals, and the State's most important fields are found in Gasconade County.

Virtually all of the 27,500 corporations doing business in Missouri have filed their annual anti-trust affidavits and reports, according to Dwight H. Brown, whose office supervises the State corporation department. Most of the corporations responded earlier this year than last, thereby avoiding the penalty which the law prescribes. There are approximately 20,000 domestic and 7500 foreign corporations operating in Missouri.

There are approximately seventy-five non-profit, co-operative corporations in Missouri, each of which is required to pay a $10 fee annually.

Ira A. McBride, State supervisor of building and loan, is in Washington for a conference with John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation Board, and other members of the board. They will discuss the Housing Act and other matters pertaining to building and loan.

Three Missouri officials have gone to Boston, Mass., to attend a convention of the National Tax Association. Those making the trip are Forrest Smith, State auditor; Richard R. Nacy, State treasurer, and Andy W. Wilcox, chairman of the State Tax Commission.

Any industry will serve as a barometer of business conditions and recently the mining world has registered decided accelerations in the direction of prosperity. "Metal Mining", said Mining Review, a trade journal, a few weeks ago, "is walking right into a boom period that nothing can stop. Only the most pessimistic could hold fears for mining's future. There is a considerable amount of industrial expansion going on, public works are under way and accelerated home construction is anticipated".

The valuation of inundated lands of the Lake of the Ozarks, the property of the Union Light and Power Company, has been raised by the State Tax Commission, of which Andy W. Wilcox is chairman, to $56 per acre on 60,586 acres, being an increase of more than a million dollars above the valuation as fixed by county assessors. This land is situated in Miller, Camden, Morgan, Benton, Henry and St. Clair Counties.

Four large meat packing concerns—Swift, Cudahy, Armour and Wilson—announced wage increases averaging 8 per cent for more than 100,000 employees. This brings wages in such plants above the 1929 level. The wage hike means an $80,000 annual increase to some 1200 workers in the St. Louis district.

Government Competition With Private Enterprise Detrimental to More Than 40 Industries!

Your Taxes Go to Keep the Government in the Retail Mercantile and Other Business

You may be amazed to learn that there is scarcely an enterprise, business or profession that has not been invaded to some extent by the Government. A recent report shows that unfair competitive interference by the Government affects at least 225 items of trade and service in more than two score industries. YOUR BUSINESS MIGHT BE NEXT. Every victory for Government invasion sets a dangerous precedent for further encroachment.

Government in business is dangerous to the rights and prosperity of every citizen. Hon. Joseph B. Shannon, Congressman from Missouri, chairman of a special committee to investigate the situation, made the following statement in a speech before the House of Representatives, June 15, 1934:

Those of us who advocate diversification of Government and business are right. In addition, we are on sound Democratic ground. The latest utterance of the Democratic Party on the subject was in the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention in 1932, which advocated—

The removal of Government from all fields of private enterprise except where necessary in developing public works and natural resources in the common interest. And our President wrote:

I am for this platform 100 percent—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That plank was established to perpetuate and protect the rights of the citizens.

It is essential that you arouse yourself to the dangers that confront you from Government in business. The findings of the special committee showed most Government operated businesses not paying their way but being supported on the tax payers' money in direct competition to tax-paying private enterprises. Hundreds of protests from local merchants came to the committee. The danger has been recognized and complaints registered by such representative organizations as the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturer's Association, and the Federation of American Business.

"The evidence in general," reads the committee report, "indicates that the operations of the Federal Government in the field of private enterprise have reached a magnitude and diversity which threatens to reduce the private initiative, curtail the opportunities, and infringe upon the earning powers of taxpaying undertakings while steadily increasing the levies upon them."

Your public utility companies in Missouri pay over $3,000,000 a year in taxes for support of government functions. If replaced by non-tax-paying government, or municipal plants, you would have to make up your share of the tax money thus lost. The building of municipal electric, gas or water plants rarely means lower rates, but always places a first mortgage on the property of every tax payer in the community and increases secondly taxes.

Completely outfitted, clothed, shaved, shined and shampooed by Government Shops and Industries

An example of the extent of government interference in business was vividly demonstrated when a man was brought before the special committee to investigate government competition with private enterprises, fully dressed and barbered by government retail stores and with a grip full of extra accessories for himself and wife all manufactured and sold by the government.

Your taxes go to keep the government in the Retail Mercantile Business, operated by inexperienced men and women who have nothing of state and nothing of their own invested.

Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastain Sounds Session Keynote

Delivering the principal address of the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the ninth district of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs Tuesday evening and sounding the keynote of the convention theme, "Progress Consists in Eternal Seeking", Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastain of Butler, president of the State Federation, urged session delegates and visitors to adjust their manner of living to present day requirements.

To illustrate the need of adjustment, Mrs. Chastain reviewed aspects of material progress which had confronted Americans during the last twenty years. In this year women of the nation are offered a great opportunity for constructive work, she said, relating that an acquaintance once told her women's clubs signified interference in behalf of those social and economic problems which require attention. Within their own groups, club women seek to know more about life, and their work, notable in the past, must be continued for the consummation of outstanding achievements.

Considering each of the divisions under which women's clubs work, Mrs. Chastain pointed to the pressing need for still further social reform, including the abolition of child labor and the sterilization of the unfit, since the funds required to tend the mentally unfit are far too large in comparison with those spent in educating deserving persons.

The crowd which heard Mrs. Chastain and Charles H. Compton of St. Louis, president of the American Library Association, who commended the women's clubs, saying that 80 per cent of all libraries have been established because of the initiative of women, and who sought support of the women for the Missouri Library Commission, filled the auditorium of the Methodist Episcopal church, where all sessions of the convention were held.

The program was opened Tuesday evening with an invocation by the Rev. E. H. Orear, greetings by Robert Dempster, city attorney, who officiated because of the illness of Dr. G. W. Presnell, and a response by Mrs. C. E. Carleton of Farmington. Placed throughout the remainder of the program were solos by Mrs. Gale Curtright of Columbia, formerly of Poplar Bluff, Mrs. E. H. Orear of Sikeston, Mrs. K. C. Weber of Farmington, and Mrs. C. S. Keaton of Cairo.

Including visitors, who came from towns throughout Southeast Missouri, approximately 200 women attended sessions of the convention. According to an unofficial count, fifty-two delegates were present, six from Farmington, two from Perryville, two from Leadwood, two from Fredericktown, ten from Poplar Bluff, five from Jackson, three from Dexter, one from Desloge, one from Morley, two from Piedmont, three from Senath, two from Gideon, two from Blodgett, two from Cape Girardeau, two from Caruthersville, two from Ellington. Women representing almost the entire membership of several women's clubs in towns near Sikeston came here Tuesday and Wednesday to be present at the meetings.

In addition to these delegates the following officers of the ninth district were also present: Mrs. Nelle Smith, Poplar Bluff, president; Mrs. C. E. Carleton, Farmington, first vice-president; Mrs. O. L. Spencer, Benton, second vice-president; Mrs. C. S. Fitz, Poplar Bluff secretary; Mrs. R. H. Watson, Kennett, district chairman of motion pictures; Mrs. D. I. L. Seabough, Jackson, international relations; Mrs. L. D. DuRocher, Poplar Bluff, community law; Mrs. T. J. Brentlinger, Dexter, literature; Mrs. R. H. Leslie, Fredericktown, press and publicity; Mrs. E. T. Gramling, Cape Girardeau, public welfare; Mrs. J. H. C. Anderson, Poplar Bluff, junior clubs; Mrs. J. H. Lindsay, Poplar Bluff, library; Mrs. Morrell DeReign, Caruthersville, education; Mrs. W. P. Kinsolving, Malden, fine arts; Mrs. B. K. Flannery, Poplar Bluff, music; Mrs. Arch Russell, Sikeston, American citizenship; Mrs. W. P. Giessing, Piedmont, legislation; Mrs. Carl Abington, Poplar Bluff, highway beautification.

At Charleston, which members of the time and place committee chose for the 1935 annual meeting of the ninth district, members of the Wednesday Morning Music Club, of the Charleston Literary Club, and of the Business and Professional Women's Club will serve as hostesses to delegates and visitors.

Thirty members of the State Board of the Missouri Federation, arrived here early Monday afternoon for a session at the Methodist Episcopal church, a picnic supper and meeting at the home of Mrs. H. F. Emerson at Morley, and additional sessions at the church here throughout Tuesday morning and afternoon, during which they discussed and planned their year's work. At noon Tuesday they were guests of the Sikeston Woman's Club at luncheon.

Before they adjourned, members of the board adopted the following resolutions which were presented to them by Mrs. Chastain:

1. That every club in M. F. W. C. send in at least one paid subscription for the "Clubwoman" G. F. W. C.

2. That the M. F. W. C. continue its interest in and work for joint Foundation Fund of the G. F. W. C. and the M. F. W. C. on the basis of $2.50 per member for those clubs belonging to G. F. W. C. This fund to be divided on a 50-50 basis.

3. That we complete the Fund that will assure the Missouri Bell in the Washington Memorial National Carillon at Valley Forge.

4. That the M. F. W. C. reaffirm its endorsement of the proposed Child Labor Amendment and pledge ourselves to work actively for its ratification in Missouri by the Legislature that convenes in January, 1935.

5. That the M. F. W. C. reaffirm its stand in temperance and record itself as:

a. Opposing the return of the saloon

b. Recommending that temperance instruction should be emphasized in our public school system, calling attention to the evil effect of the use of alcohol.

From the resolutions adopted at the national council meeting held at Hot Springs, Ark., in May of this year, the following recommendation of Mrs. Chastain was also accepted:

6. Whereas, certain types of crime are perpetrated by organized groups of gangsters who do not confine their unlawful activities to one locality but take advantage of improved methods of transportation and communication, and of the limited powers possessed by the State authorities in pursuing fugitive criminals; and whereas, the Department of Justice has presented to Congress a program contained in a series of bills which will permit the Federal Government in a co-operative manner to supplement to State Law Enforcement activities; Be it resolved, that the M. F. W. C. endorse the Crime Prevention and Crime Control Bills and press those crime prevention and control bills which remain unacted and which may come up at the next session of Congress.

7. That the M. F. W. C. express to the President of the United States and Senators Nye and Vandenberg our wholehearted approval and interest in the investigation of munitions activities, which is now in progress, and that we are looking to a day when such traffic shall not be permitted.

8. That the clubs of M. F. W. C. undertake the study of Unemployment Insurance and Old Age Pensions and Women's Equal Rights Amendment during the autumn of 1934 so that they may be in position to register their opinion of the legislative proposals in Missouri.

9. That the M. F. W. C. endorse the general principle and purpose of Senate Bill 2800, introduced by Senator Copeland in the 73d Congress—generally called the Pure Food and Drugs Bill.

Members of the State Board of the Missouri Federation who were here are: Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastain, Butler, president; Mrs. Martha Taaf, Carthage, first vice-president; Mrs. M. H. Muchall, St. Louis, second vice-president; Mrs. C. L. Joslyn, Charleston, recording secretary; Mrs. T. W. Talbot, Fayette, corresponding secretary; Miss Jessie Black, Ellsberry, treasurer.

Miss Jean McCaw, Rolla, chairman of the lead fund; Mrs. J. P. Hinton, Hannibal, American citizenship; Miss Amelia Wetherell, Carthage, law observance; Mrs. L. C. Sutherland, St. Joseph, American home; Miss Pauline Humphries, Warrensburg, education; Mrs. K. C. Weber, Farmington, roadside beautification; Mrs. Sydney Haysler, Clinton, music; Miss Alves Long, St. Louis, international relations; Mrs. E. W. Smith, Kansas City, junior clubs; Mrs. H. F. Emerson, Morley, legislation; Mrs. Arretus F. Burt, St. Louis, motion pictures; Mrs. D. S. Long, Harrisonville, press and publicity; Mrs. T. Brandt Leitch, St. Louis, radio; Mrs. W. T. Martin, Albany, public welfare; Miss Anna Weir, Sealtalia, community service.

Mrs. J. L. Griffin, Marysville, first district president; Miss Leona Koehler, Kansas City, second district president; Mrs. J. C. Mills, Kirksville, third district president; Mrs. James Dyer, Troy, fourth district president; Mrs. Shelton Lessley, Slater, fifth district president; Mrs. Harry Bissett, Springfield, sixth district president; Mrs. Dan Bartholomew, Joplin, seventh district president; Mrs. J. T. Davis, St. Louis, eighth district president; Mrs. Nelle Smith, Poplar Bluff, ninth district president.

During Tuesday afternoon, when delegates to the ninth district convention arrived and registered, Mrs. H. P. Kinsolving of Malden, district chairman of art, presided at an unusually varied and noteworthy art and antique exhibit, at which members of a Jackson woman's club presented an old-fashioned skit. At the same time Mrs. J. L. Lindsay of Poplar Bluff, district chairman of library, discussed different phases of library work with women who are particularly interested in that part of the organization's activity.

One hundred and sixty persons attended the banquet Tuesday evening, which was served by members of the Russell-Bradley Missionary Society in the basement of the Methodist church.

This meeting, the opening session of the district convention, was opened by Mrs. Nelle Smith, who soon placed it in the charge of Mrs. Arch Russell, the toastmistress. In addition to an invocation and two soprano solos, persons present at the banquet heard brief greetings by Mrs. Chastain and by the State Board members, who were introduced before delegates and visitors adjourned to the church auditorium for the evening meeting.

Throughout Wednesday delegates to the convention were in session, transacting important business, hearing reports of individual clubs and of work conducted by district chairmen. Women of the Christian church served 140 women at the luncheon at which divisional activity was discussed. Throughout the day, the business program was supplemented with musical numbers by talented singers and musicians.

YOUR KIDNEYS

You may urge them on by stimulants to do their work for a while, but they will soon begin to show their weakness and the body will suffer.

The cause of most all kidney disorders is due to pressure on the nerves supplying them at the point where they leave the spine. Because of this, the kidneys cannot get enough life energy to make them strong.

Chiropractic Adjustments release this pressure and nature makes the kidney strong. 1 out of 13 die of Nephritis.

Although the Rev. Haynie of Chicago to uncertain, plans are being made for the Rev. Haynie of Chicago to conduct the evangelistic services sometime during this month.

REPLICAS OF FAMOUS GEMS ON DISPLAY AT DRUG STORE

Replicas of some of the world's most famous gems, among them the Kohinoor, the Pasha the Great Mogul and other diamonds, that have figured in history, make up an interesting display in one of the Heisserer's Drug Store.

Representations of these stones have been cut from Mexican diamonds, which are mined in Mexico, and surrounding this display is shown samples of the crude quartz as taken from these mines, as well as stones showing the various processes involved in the cutting of these stones, which rival genuine diamonds in color and brilliancy. This interesting display is one which attracted considerable interest at the Century of Progress in Chicago last summer and fall.

SHAINBERG OVERALL SALE TO HAVE MANY FEATURES

To acquaint the public more thoroughly with Lee overalls, Shainberg's will offer numerous attractions added to their overall sale Saturday.

Included in the features will be the presentation of a free pair of Lee overalls to the person who buys the greatest number of Lee garments during the sale; and a pair of Lee overalls and a jumper free to the person who appears at the store with the largest family, all members of which are dressed in Lee unionalls, overalls, or shirt and trousers.

A third feature of Saturday's sale will be the exhibition of what is believed to be the largest overall ever manufactured. This garment will be on display throughout Saturday. All customers of Shainberg's will be permitted to guess how many yards of sewing thread were required to make the giant overall. The person whose guess is closest to the right answer will be given a pair of Lee overalls free.

Lee overalls, long a standard brand, are known as dependable garments, well-made and constructed for comfort and for long wear.

TEACHERS WILL DISPLAY UNITS AT MEET IN CAPE

Already preparations are being made for the teachers' meeting to be held in Academic Hall on October 18 and 19. Society rooms and Statuary Hall have been measured for tables which are being built and placed to provide for display of the dozens of exhibits which have been promised from all parts of Southeast Missouri.

Miss Sadie T. Kent, College Librarian, who is in charge of the plans, has sent letters to over two hundred schools in the district asking for co-operation in the presentation of one unit each for the exhibit. The letters explain that the College Library has for years sponsored an Educational Exhibit which was set up before the teachers arrived. This fall there is to be a departure. Schools in the north of the district would like to know what schools in the south are doing and visa versa.

By the new plan, which is now well under way, a school group will bring with it a "unit"—something which it can easily transport and display in a limited space. There are to be no competitions for elaborate back-grounds and expensive effects. Teachers want to see what others are actually accomplishing with certain grades are classes—how certain ideas are objectively brought into the classroom. There will be posters, scrapbooks, booklets and the like.

It will be interesting to see what comes out of some suitcases. Several schools have made a definite response. One in particular has a unit entitled "Believe it or not." This is no imported exhibit from the "Century of Progress". It is a practical unit prepared by a teacher and class of the district.

This is only one of the many units which have been promised. Space is being assigned and posters made, so if any group has not responded to the letters it should do so at once. The new plan for the exhibit will bring the cream of originality, ingenuity and talent of our schools to Cape College for October 1 and 19.

The "stalls" for the bookmen have been designed. The librarian is providing an adequate supply of new book and play catalogues for those who are interested. The new places for the exhibit will give the teachers a vital part in the display for their own making and we "on the hill" anxiously await the "units".

ARRESTS TO FOLLOW USE OF SOME RURAL SCHOOLS BY LOVERS

Not since the hectic days of the lovers' lane bandits of a year or more ago has the problem of spooners, "neckers", lovers or what have you, received much attention by Butler county officers. It may be necessary, however, in the near future to discourage the followers of Daniel Cupid, commented Sheriff Lester Massingham, especially as regards those couples who choose rural school grounds for the scene of the amorous endeavors.

It seems as though school directors, parents and teachers associated with certain rural schools in the vicinity of Poplar Bluff have registered their disapproval. It isn't that the spooners disrupt daytime study. Not that, at all. In certain cases, they point out,

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our darling babe, Larry Alleen Williams. Especially do we thank Rev. Rhodes for her consoling words, Albrinton's for their service, and those that gave flowers and furnished cars. Each act of kindness will be long remembered.

Mexican Supreme Court has truck a severe blow to the ancient "portero" system, still used in the majority of Mexican apartments. It has ordered Senora Paz Hagenbeck to pay Dionisha Rodriguez her concierge since 1894, 40,000 pesos, about $11,144. The concierge complained that she had not received a salary originally agreed to, of 28 cents a month, with lodging and 3 cents for each time she opened the door after 10 o'clock. She further stated that late hours and the night air had brought her rheumatism. The court ordered the salary paid, plus interest and an occupational ailment indemnity.

Are You Interested In Our Community?

We know the answer. Of course you are! So are we! What's more, we are interested in you. And it must follow that you are interested in us.

You are interested in our community because you live here, you work here, you have your investments here, you pay taxes here, you are raising a family here, and —you like the place.

So do we!

We live here! We work here! We have our investments here! We pay taxes here! We are raising a big family (of employees) here! And —well—we like the place!

Quite a community of interest.

We are interested in you because it is all the 'you's' who have made the community grow. We have grown with the community. We can't grow if it doesn't.
